Foreword

“Fort Wayne High School—Central High School—the same yesterday, today, and forever.”

In 1905 the first graduates left the halls of their Alma Mater with the same ideals and hopes with which we as Seniors are leaving dear old Central today. Throughout the life of Central the same high standard of scholarship and interest in activities has been maintained.

The aim of the editors of this book is to record the annals of Central and to portray through the following pages the life and interests of the entire student body; to bring to mind the hardships that our ancestors suffered in order that we might enjoy the many privileges which have been ours; to compile a memory book for all graduates which will recall old friendships and long-forgotten memories of a golden youth spent in dear old Central.

Fort Wayne, Indiana.

DEDICATED to the indomitable spirit of Anthony Wayne and the sturdy pioneers who braved the perils of a wilderness, that this great City might arise.

In Memoriam

---

The Class of 1925 dedicates this page to the memory of William L. McMillen, for twenty-five years one of the builders of our curriculum, at his death supervisor of all the English of our public schools, and linked to us especially by his office and instructorship at Central. To this man, whose professional thought and daily service were directed toward preparing us for our own full participation in the responsibilities and enjoyments of life, we pay tribute, and to all who, like him,

Care not to be great,
But as they save or serve the state.
We revere, and while we hear
The tides of Music's golden sea
Setting toward eternity,
Uplifted high in heart and hope are we,
Until we doubt not that for one so true
There must be other nobler work to do.

Building Fort Wayne

FORT WAYNE! What volumes and volumes of romance imbibed in those two words!

Romance started when the naked, painted savage, paddling his bark canoe on the St. Mary's, greeted his feather-bedecked brother with a challenge. But Fate intervened—the challenge was never answered. For with simultaneous fright each nimble son of the forest grasped his weapon and turned in alarm to behold a sight new and terrifying. A strange canoe paddled by a strange man who was, at last, after the lapse of untold centuries—The First White Man—came in view. To the wondering savages he seemed a messenger from the gods. He might have been; but he wasn't; he was in truth the advance spirit of destruction—the forerunner of hordes of whites who were soon to tear the boundless wilderness from the Red Man and scatter the remnants of his people to the four corners of the earth.

As this "messenger of the gods" stepped ashore, he saw not the beautiful place of homes which we call Lakeside, but only the smoke rising from the fires of the wigwams of the Kiskakono hidden by the trees and high banks of the river. Neither did he hear the "honk-honk" of the automobiles or the "clang-clang" of the trolley car, nor the humming of the aeroplane, but only the babble of unknown tongues and the call of the wild fowl.

Opening of Wabash and Erie Canal

The story of the beginnings of the City of Fort Wayne is the record of the most famous portage in America. Simply to mention the word portage brings to one's mind the phantom vision of the explorer and the adventurer, the black-robed Jesuit Father and the bloodthirsty savage, the French and English soldiers, and the trader and pioneer, who fade once again into the past as memory fails and we realize things as they are.

A portage or "carrying place" is a pathway between two rivers coursing in general opposite directions. It is easy to picture the earliest white traveller as, day after day, he pushes forward, until, finally, he reaches a point where two rivers join to form one river; and here he finds an Indian stronghold, the ancient village of the Kiskakono, on the site of the present Fort Wayne.

Here, beyond the memory of whites, existed the strongest Indian settlement of the middle west.

Here the earliest French explorers and traders established and fortified trading posts which they controlled until the coming of the English.

Here the savage defeated the English and entered upon years of frontier warfare which continued from the day of Pontiac until the building of Wayne's American fort.

The mere mention of "Mad Anthony" Wayne brings a thrill to every citizen of Fort Wayne. For it was he who, after many Indian and British encounters, established that old fort, Wayne, which has grown to be our own glorious Fort Wayne! For the establishment of the fort, Wayne's army halted on a high point of land overlooking the valley on the opposite shore of the Maumee where the River St. Mary's and the St. Joseph united themselves into one common stream.

The chosen site for the fort appears to have been a tract of land represented today by lots 11, 12, 13 Taber's Addition. Lot 11 is the present location of the Western Newspaper Union, at the northwest corner of East Berry and Clay Streets. This was an especially favorable place, because it overlooked and commanded a vast scope of the country around and was especially pleasing because of ten acres of beautiful green grass with a background of heavy timber. Near by a blockhouse was also built, which served a good purpose until it was torn down in 1852.

The First Courthouse

The Fort grew and grew during the years of unexpected events and happenings till the public interest was excited and aroused with something really big and wonderful—a canal! In 1826 the Wabash & Erie Canal was a prominent topic for discussion for the public. But not until 1832 was the completion and opening celebrated.

The Present Courthouse

This canal, no longer existing, entered the town from the north, paralleling the St. Joseph river, and extended through Bloomington and Nebraska districts to the present site of the Wayne Knitting Mills.

Here started the progressive spirit of Fort Wayne and the building of the canal was only an inspiration for other vast and important projections hardly conceivable to those of the time. Nevertheless, now a truly artistic and beautiful courthouse occupies the site of the old frame courthouse, which faced the northwest and stood about midway between Calhoun and Court Streets. It was forty feet square and two stories in height, surmounted by a cupola or steeple.

But travel along now not in fancy, but in reality, and view our imposing Lincoln Life Building, our South Side High School, our veritable skyscraper, the "New National Bank", which portrays to you a bit of modern Fort Wayne.

May we, the generation of today, ever carry on this progressive spirit with a zeal and enterprise ne'er to be excelled.

Principal

Life consists of only a few things of real value. If we have these, life holds for us satisfaction, happiness, and time well spent. Among these is courtesy, honesty, truthfulness, hard work, and a desire to be considerate and fair to all. If you had these qualities when you came to us four years ago, your time here has been easier and pleasanter. If you have gained them since you came, we are glad we could have a part in it. If you have not yet learned them, I hope that your future will be easier than I now can predict.

FRED H. CRONINGER

MISS ANNA B LEWIS

Dean of Girls

Greetings to the students of Central High School. To the Seniors many good wishes as we bid them farewell. We hope they will remember us with pleasure and that they will not forget that we watch them with interest and pride.

Let me remind all of you of a truth from the pen of Ralph Waldo Emerson, expressed something like this—A beautiful behavior is better than a beautiful form; it gives to leisure more pleasure than the creation of statues and pictures; it is the finest of all arts.

History of Senior Class

As the curtain slowly arises, we are taken back to the year of 1921. Here we see ourselves as members of the class of '25, trying to live down the humiliation of being a "freshie". We will admit we were considered green, perhaps very green, but one consolation is that we were "bright green". However, we soon proceeded to make ourselves noticeable.

Act I

Scene I: The first scene takes place some time during the middle of the second semester in Room I in form of an election. The main characters chosen are Edward Hulse, president; Pauline Bowerfind, vice-president; and Arna McFarland, secretary and treasurer. Since there was little time left, we could hardly have any parties, so we didn't elect a social council.

Act II

This act will prove more interesting, for we have passed the green to the incoming class and have retained the bright.

Scene I: Election again, and this time we bring some new actors into the scenes. They are: President, Melvin Wolf; vice-president, Kip Sullivan; secretary, Garnet Richardson; treasurer, Perry Thomas; social council, Evelyn Richard, Mildred Lovin and Mary Ann Walters. Our advisors are Miss Ingham and Mr. Suter. Garnet Richardson and Miss Ingham resigned, so Pauline Bowerfind and Mrs. Schlatter filled their places respectively. We chose Black and Gold for our class colors.

Scene II: The location of this scene is in Foster Park. The setting is a wiener bake, which is our first big social event. It is staged so that all of the 25's could get acquainted. It not only did this, but proved a big social success as well.

Scene III: This time it is evening and we are in the library. Studying? I should say not! We are having a party and it is certainly a fine one; you can depend on that because the 25's are putting it on. Games, dancing and eats are the main features of the evening.

Scene IV: Everybody is busy in the Spotlight office. What are they doing in there? Why, the '25 class is again stepping to the front with something new. We are only sophomores, but we published an issue of the Spotlight all by ourselves and it was considered one of the best of the year. We might also add that we established the custom of having the Sophomore Class put out one issue of the Spotlight every year.

Act III

Time is stepping fast and we are half way through our play.

Scene I: It wasn't hard to choose our main actors this time, for we still have some of them. The leading roles were given to Melvin Wolf, president; Perry Thomas, vice-president; Ruth Knatz, secretary and treasurer; Florence Stirling, Martha Rex and Poynter McEvoy, social council. Miss Sites and Mr. Suter were selected as advisors. With this snappy set of actors, you can expect some good scenes.

Scene II: The scene has again shifted to Foster Park; for the same purpose as before—a wiener bake. We have wieners, doughnuts, 'n' everything that makes a wiener bake a success. Oh, yes, please notice the girls in the distance trying to play football. The fellows had a great time taking the girls on a Snipe Hunt.

Scene III: So far this scene is the biggest and the most important. The stage is in reality the Packard Hall and there is a peppy orchestra playing the latest dance numbers. The Junior Prom is in full swing. Everyone will agree that this is the best prom in the history of Central High School.

Act IV

This act is the last and most interesting to us. We have all become dignified (?)

seniors now and have realized the importance of our high school education. Although we are all looking forward to commencement with great anticipation, we hate to think of leaving this school that sheltered us for the last four years.

Scene I: It is again time to pick our leaders. Milton Popp and Melvin Wolf have a close race for the part of president. Milton is the winner for president and Melvin is made vice-president. Ruth Knatz is secretary, and Sunny Schiek, Martha Rex and Barbara Thomas form the social council. Mr. Northrup is treasurer for the senior class as in former years. Our advisors are Miss Ingham and Mr. Veatch.

Scene II: The Seniors are excited and busily making plans for the big barn dance that is to be given soon at a large barn out in the country. All the plans are made and everything seems to be going fine, when a big surprise awaits us on the night of the dance. We find that the barn has been moved to our gym, not literally, of course. Since a satisfactory way of transportation couldn't be obtained, the committee turned our gym into a regular barn, and fun—we never had so much before! We had a good orchestra and plenty of eats. We had a regular Hallowe'en bunch, because the party was given just before that bewitching night. I do believe that some of the members of the class wore out the soles of their shoes they danced so much.

Scene III: This is between semesters and school was dismissed at noon. If you should happen to wander into the building during the afternoon, you would see just one mass of blue and white paper and, if you look hard enough, you will see a number of dignified seniors climbing up on ladders and almost every place else. Now you want to know what that class of '25's is up to this time. It happens to be the preparation for the big Senior Street Fair. It surely was one grand and glorious success. The acts in the auditorium were fine and so were the side shows. Later in the evening dancing predominated in the gym, with a dandy orchestra to lead the dancers on.

Scene IV: Now we really are on the stage—the Strand Theater stage. Anne Weaver and Perry Thomas have the leads in "To the Ladies". The play was a wonderful success and was considered one of the best ever given. It was coached under the able direction of Miss Marjorie Snter.

Birdseye View of Class of '25 in 1930

Unfortunately most of us have a future. Futures from an airplane are apt to be rather atomic—dust if you will. Of all the dust particles that have blown across my path since I started on this trip the '25 dusty atoms are the most brilliant. "Polished Pebbles"? Absolutely no! They're real gems. I'll tell you how they shine:

At Arcola—On Broadway—James P. McEvoy, noted revivalist, accompanied by his accomplished songbird, Edmund Van Buskirk, is meeting with great success. Traverse Chandler holds down the court house corner with a soap box as a Socialistic political orator.

Chicago—Calhoun Street—John Raudebush has recently opened an Orphans' Home for all stray dogs and cats. Dorothy Foster—human fly—climbing S. S. H. S. She is attaining great heights. Circus parade is just passing down the street, featuring Hermione Hile as fat lady and Robert Beard carrying elephants' trunks. Ralph Popp is the funniest clown in the world and Margaret Jane Hoffman is making stump speeches on "The Advantages of Alarm Clocks," with David Bernstein as her assistant sales manager, face repairer, and expert winder.

Columbus, Ohio—On the roof gardens on top of the Grand Leader sits Millicent Gebhart, demurely giving demonstrations of how to apply Hind's Honey and Almond Cream; Mildred Sweet and Carlotta Walker soliciting from house to house selling (trying to sell) Moses Hurwitz's latest novel, written on the Coffee Pot Steeple (Teapot Dome). Donald Close is a broadcaster on "The Most Efficient Method of Delaying Traffic".

St. Augustine, Fla.—Allen Lomont is doing wholesale barbering. His great success is attributed to his very clever sign, "Shaving Done Without Pain or Whiskers Refunded", designed by Pauline Bowerfud. Red Bash is attaining great heights as fire chief, assisted by Robert Gresley, who is now planning to lead a rebellion against the present form of government. Every morning one may see Earl Kelsey slinging bottles of milk along Harrison for the Contented Cow Company, which is owned and operated by Paul Cromley and his wife, Helen Griffith. Estle Saxner is busy smoking Swift hams. Slow down, Estle. Kip Sullivan is very successful in writing the "Dorothy Dix" column in the "Fiery Cross".

Washington, D. C.—Howard Tenny is landscape gardener for the Calhoun section of Wolf & Dessauer's lawn. Margaret Holden is developing her windpipes to broadcast reducing exercises to Ukelele Ike's records. Howard Buck is always seen rushing down the street carrying the fire hose for the fire department. Elmer Hornan is strutting as a model for a ladies' style show.

Austin, Texas—John Shoaff is using his knowledge by winding clocks for the Western Union. Gertrude Allwardt, who owns a large potato farm, is employing Juanita Lee to kill potato bugs by dropping bombs on them.

Logansport—Mildred Ayers and Marguerite Stauffer are writing a book on "How to Make Lemons Sweet". Its success is doubtful or assured.

Kendallville—Leo Smith is going through refrigerators for the purpose of finding ? ? ? ? ? . Here, too, I found William Winfield making wires for wireless radios.

Warsaw—Leah Peters seen in the Gab Studios posing for advertisement for Hole-proof Hosiery. Milt Popp is seen hanging sidelights. You've shined brightly enough at Central; you can let your light flicker a little now. Anna McFarland is on her way to marry the Prince. Dorothy Cook is doomed to be an old maid. The caretaker of her pet poodle is "Mose" Rothberg. The dog appreciates "Mose's" fine attention.

Michigan City—Vere Lipkey is leading a very busy but boring life of corking pop bottles.

New York City—took a visit through an institute for Feeble-Minded Youths, where I saw two fellows, clad in blue gingham overalls, holding a spirited argument at the gate. These poor unfortunates turned out to be Sonny Schiek and Hubert Roe. Each was plainly demonstrating the suspicion that they were nutty to be a fact.

Salt Lake City—Here Milt Popp has a harem that makes the Sultan of Turkey resemble a bachelor. Across the street Martha Rex slings hash in a Chop Suey Shop run by Ronald Roux.

Pittsburgh—Benjamin and William Whitmore are farming a new kind of eyeless potato. While here I visited P. Koegel's chewing gum factory and found Dorothy Lawrence and Mildred Lovin engaged in wrapping up the sticks. Vera Swank was the chief sampler.

Foo Chow, China—Evelyn Richard is running a school which proffers its graduates a degree of M. V. (Master Vampire).

Kansas City—Stirling Turner conducts a gymnasium for mental paralytics and some of his patrons are—well, guess.

Atlantic City—Ira Sanders is chief proprietor of an asparagus farm. While down by the beach I saw a sign—

B. Thomas and M. Fisher
Enterprising Undertakers
"Eventually—Why Not Now?"

Phoenix—P. Thomas and Mel Wolf are engaged in an uplifting business. P. T. runs a suspender factory, while Mel is owner, salesman and receiver of a belt company. They seem to be supporting themselves quite fittingly.

New Haven—Mareille Link, world-wide wonder whistler, gave an exhibition, accompanied by Kenneth Cook on the drum. Sarah Miner and Mildred Bauer rival each other in drawing pictures of this beautiful whis-tlér—accidentally selling them for what they can.

Decatur—Here I saw the latest Broadway success at the M. Kopf Theatre with All Star Cast! Dale Reichelderfer in "A Winner with the Wimmin"!!! leading lady, Winifred Wolfe. Dorothy Woehr designing costumes for the Reichelderfer troupe, with headquarters at the Irene Neiman Tuberculosis Hospital.

Peru—Mary Catherine Emerick, a criminal lawyer, is defending Hank Kowalczyk, on trial for the murder of his sixth wife. The wimmin still persist in loving Hank!

South Bend—Helene Hantch and Clara Henline are prosperous farmers for the Horton Manufacturing Company. Blair Bushong punches shoe buttons on for the Rainbow Waist Shop. Clifton Gross is selling slightly used cars. Wilbert Felber is Stage Senator from Chile. Alvin Schuelke and Fred Shoppman have a spaghetti farm a few miles out of the city.

Henpeck—Marna Reiber and Jeanette Botteron make straw flowers out of hay and Stanley Cutshall is official postmaster at Henpeck and is kept very busy reading the backs of postal cards. Too bad about the one and one-half cent post rate, Stanley. If you want advance information on farming, write to the Odorless Onion Farm, owned by Lucile Harrigan, Thelma Harris, and Doris Hiscutt.

Preble—Ralph Rost is the greatest historian of bugology. Dorothy Miley is singing at the funeral of the unknown writer of Tufts' "What Happens After Living". Lillian Ponsot and Neva King are the official pencil sharpeners of the Eversharp Company.

St. Paul—Daniel Price is the great discoverer of the North South portion of Tooner-ville. Edna Rohland and Ernestine English are training covered word puzzlers to have dispositions. Maxine Harris and Ruth Hathaway are going to coach the Old Eli football team to vi-ory at Yale. Esther French is the nice old German Teacher at Wisconsin.

Madison—Gathia Treece has been defeated by Laverne Beerman for Governor, and their campaign managers are Paul Berghorn and Bob Biteman respectively. Lucille Beckman, Mary Borgman, Chloia Dager and Margaret Ehrman have distinguished themselves in the universal sport of waiting on a street car. Marie Houck and Ruth Klaehn are engaged in separating the shakes from worn-out milk shakers with the use of the H. Mays and W. McMaken separator.

Kalamazoo—Here I saw Dorothy Fitzpatrick and Helen Fell looking over their extensive strawberry and dandelion farms. They had heard that somebody was making shortcake out of one part of their property and short work of the other. Outside the city limits Virginia Glock and Aldean Goeke keep a dog biscuit farm.

Nome—Allen Marks and "Chet" Ludwig together have patented a device for stopping all vibration in Fords. Their idea was to stop the Ford altogether.

Gary—Leslie Weinbrenner gently swearing at the padded walls of ——— and at his warden, Bert Timma. Emma Sibler is life insurance collector for Earl Shanaberger, great single killer on Calhoun Street. Ruth Norford is famous loud speaker for the Chicago Opera Company broadcasting telephone. Beda O'Brien is the famous Russian dancer now making a hit at the Moscow Arts Theatre. Gertrude Barnhart is second only to the great Sarah.

Monmouth—Paul Stier is the greatest costume designer for Miss Suter's animal show. Georgia Skeleton is the originator of the new skeleton dance featured in "Quick, Euphrosyne, the Milk Bottle!" a stupendous drama of the twentieth century written by Mary Ruth Reising. In the cast are Velma Weaver as "The Killer", Leona Wallace as the vicious germ and Arabella Pitts as the cool, white heroine. Charlotte Evans is the leading lady of the "Milk Bottle Chorus".

Indianapolis—The Great scientists, Kurt Rohland and Bob Whipple, have discovered the great self-exploding radish. Lamoile Partee has invented a calendar in which Saturday night appears every other day.

'25 Honor Roll

It is a noteworthy fact that the Honor Roll of the Class of '25 consists of those students who have done and who are doing things in Central rather than those who have done nothing but "dig" and "dig" rather than taking part in outside activities in connection with their regular school work. The '25 class consists of a group of students who do things, but they do not consider their studies a minor part of their school life. For instance, John Shoaff, the valedictorian of the class, is a track man of no mean ability, is business manager of the Caldron, and is a member of many clubs. Arna McFarland, the salutatorian, has worked on the Spotlight for three years and the last two years has been on the major staff, besides being an officer in one of the prominent clubs. Jeanette Botteron is a member of the Spotlight Staff and also prominent in Central's clubs. Stirling Turner, although missing a year of school, has found time for dramatics, clubs and Spotlight work. Ruth Knatz was editor-in-chief of the Spotlight last semester, officer of various clubs, secretary of the Senior Class, and has taken part in many other activities which are too numerous to mention. Gathia Treece worked in the office for two semesters and has also worked on the Keyboard Staff. Martha Rex has been prominent in class activities and has also been Editor-in-Chief of the Keyboard. Howard Tenney is Editor-in-Chief of the Spotlight, takes part in dramatics, besides supporting himself partly so that he might receive an education. Florence Stirling has spent much of her valuable time on the Caldron, has worked on the Spotlight, and dramatics, and has found time for clubs, but has considered her lessons just as important as all these other activities.

So you see that this Honor Roll consists of a group of students who not only get their lessons in fine style, but find time to do other things.

The class of '26 did not organize when they were freshmen because of a misunderstanding. Determined to make up for lost time, they started their Sophomore year with a firm purpose, which was to make the class of '26 the best in the school. Richard Shoaff was elected president, Marcella Koerber vice-president, and Tom Turner secretary and treasurer. Elizabeth Smith, Leonard Scheele and Harold Johnson were selected for the social council. Miss Beierlein and Mr. Richardson were chosen as faculty advisors. The officers soon had plans formulated for a Christmas party that was held in the gym. Everyone enjoyed the dancing, games and refreshments.

This year the class of '26 again elected Dick Shoaff president. The other officers selected were Glen Van Hoozen, vice-president; Robert Ruhl, secretary and treasurer; Virginia Curdes, Esther Gaskill and Robert Bradtmiller, social council; Miss Miller and Mr. Richardson were selected as faculty advisors.

The first big affair staged by this now well-known class of '26 was a wiener bake at Sylvan Beach. There were a large crowd of Juniors present and, since there was a great amount of good things to eat and everyone just overflowing with pep and enthusiasm, everyone had a wonderful time.

SOCIAL COUNCIL

It was only two years ago that the then inconspicuous class of '27 entered the portals of Central High as freshmen, and since that time they have earned the very appropriate name of "That Peppy Sophomore Class".

As a starter in their career, they held their first business meeting, at which they elected their officers. Tom Popp was chosen president, and Mary Pratt vice-president. It was not customary for a class to have both a secretary and a treasurer, but the '27's were used to doing the unexpected, and this was no exception. Accordingly, Blanche Loneragon was elected secretary and Geraldine Robinson treasurer. The social council was composed of Katherine Alter, Jack White, and Harland Robinson. The faculty advisors consisted of Miss Schwehn and Mr. Reising. This election plainly shows the excellent judgment of the '27's in choosing such reliable able people to guide their class through the hardships of the Freshman year.

Blue and gold were chosen as the class colors, and it was decided to publish a complete issue of the Spotlight. Nell Gunn was chosen editor-in-chief, who, with the assistance of twenty or more of her classmates, published a special Freshman issue of the Spotlight, an undertaking never before tried by any freshman class in the history of the school.

The first social event planned by the class was a get-acquainted party which was held at the last part of the semester. The main features of the evening were dancing, games, and refreshments. The party, as all previous enterprises, proved a great success.

The class of '27 started off their second year with a bang! The first event of the season was the election of officers, at which

Park Drayer PRESIDENT	Madelaine Cromwell VICE-PRESIDENT	Mary Shields SECRETARY	Helen Preece SOCIAL COUNCIL
OFFICERS of the CLASS of 1928

Suzanne Ivins SOCIAL COUNCIL	William Sur FACULTY ADVISORS	Bertha Wohlfeld	Wayne Link SOCIAL COUNCIL

Class of 1928

Another class is well on its way to success in its high school career. The class of '28 has shown much enthusiasm in organizing. They have succeeded in getting a very good start by electing a lively set of officers, with Park Drayer, Jr., at the helm of the good ship '28. The mates are Madeline Cromwell, first mate or vice-president, and Mary Shields, second mate or secretary and treasurer. Helen Preece, Suzanne Ivins and Elizabeth Childers, able seamen, or social council. Elizabeth Childers has left the city, so Wayne Link has filled her place with admirable capacity. Their faculty advisors are Miss Wohlfeld and Mr. Sur.

The freshmen have hardly had time to show their ability as a class, but we are sure that they will keep step with the other classes in the undertakings that they attempt.

They have supported the school and its activities in a body since the first day they entered high school and we are sure that they will support everything in the school as long as they are students here.

The Caldron and Spotlight Office

Until the year nineteen twenty-four and twenty-five, the Spotlight and Caldron had no definite place in which their respective work might be done. First the office was in the front part of Miss Lewis's rooms and then the office was moved to Miss Ingham's former room, 113. But, as both the Spotlight and Caldron increased in size and circulation, larger and more permanent rooms were needed. This year the definite Spotlight and Caldron office was located on the second floor in the South Corridor of the building. It is in this place that brilliant underclassmen train for success in their Senior year, the success of becoming one of the major members of the Caldron or Spotlight Staffs. The facilities of this office have been bettered every day since the first day of its existence. until now if an outsider happened to enter the Spotlight and Caldron office, he would be impressed by the filing cabinets, the paste pots, the tables, and the desks. We certainly believe that he would receive the same thrill in the Spotlight office as he would receive when he entered a big newspaper office. The hurly-burly, the rush, and the bustle has made this little room the most popular and best known place in Central, and we, the class of '25, hope that its success as an office will linger on as a place "where editors are made".

Once more an effort has been made to compile a memory book that contains the activities that have taken place in Central during the school year. Although there have been many other attempts made, we, the Caldron Staff of 1925, hope that this annual will eclipse all others ever published at Central and it is up to the student body to decide the outcome.

The Caldron is a book that is looked at the first two weeks it is published and received by the students, the next few weeks it graces the library table in the home of the graduate and student, and the remaining years of its life it graces a corner in the attic gathering dust and dirt until it is looked up by some of the students and editors for reference for the publishing of other Caldrons.

We hope in this manner to thank our advertisers who have so nobly helped by inserting their ads in this book, and we are absolutely sure the student body will patronize those who have cooperated with us in this way.

We also wish to thank the Fort Wayne Printing Company and the Fort Wayne Engraving Company for their valuable suggestions and their admirable work in the publishing of this annual, and we feel that without their suggestions and valuable information this book could not have been.

The policy of the school and the publications of this school has always been to patronize Fort Wayne concerns rather than to patronize outsiders who have nothing to do with the advancing of Fort Wayne's interests. And we can truthfully say that we have lived up to this aspiration.

The Spotlight

1924-25 All-American School Paper

For several years a good paper and an asset to the school the Spotlight this year received higher honors than it ever has heretofore. The Spotlight was enlarged to a six-column, six-page paper at the beginning of the 1924-25 term.

In October, Arna McFarland, Leah Peters, Ruth Knatz and Mr. Richardson, the faculty advisor, went to Franklin, Ind., to the state convention. The Spotlight was not entered in the contests and so, of course, did not place.

In November Arna McFarland and Ruth Knatz were the representatives of the Spotlight to the Central Press Association at Madison, Wisconsin. Here the Spotlight was ranked in the All-American class, which is the class from which the best paper in the association is chosen.

The Spotlight continued to increase in ideas and news and the beginning of the second semester the paper changed from the plan of selling copies in the halls to that of term subscriptions at 75 cents each semester. Papers were delivered to subscribers every Thursday the seventh period.

The policy of the paper has always been to bring before the students of Central high school a truthful and unbiased account of school activities. This year, particularly, the Spotlight had a large staff of general reporters who volunteered their services, doing much to carry out the policy of the paper.

It is hoped that next year the Spotlight will be supported to the very limit in the year 1925-26 and that it will be the All-American school paper.

Mr. Willis Richardson

Coming to central from Logansport in 1923, Mr. Richardson was soon known throughout the school for his versatility. It seemed that no place was vacated which he could not fill, no emergency arose which could master him.

In the first place, he was a favorite with his students in class and his famous smile made many a friend. Besides his duties as a history teacher, many outside activities occupied his time. At the beginning of the basketball season, when it was found we had no coach, Mr. Richardson was called upon to take upon himself the task of forming, from new material, a first class basketball team. The success of this proposition is known.

Not satisfied with that, Mr. Richardson successfully directed the Senior Play last year, at the resignation of Mrs. Ingham.

Immediately, he set to work, choosing his staff with the help of a committee. At the opening of school last September, the staff was in working order and began "doing things." Very soon the first issue of the Spotlight appeared and met with general approval. As time went on the staff prepared to send papers to Franklin as well as to Madison. On the trips to conventions held at these places, "Rich" proved himself a good chaperone and entertainer. Thus he is known as an all-round man.

About the middle of January "Rich's" week-end trips to Indianapolis culminated in a grand event and he brought Mrs. Richardson back home with him. Not very long ago the Richardsons had an "at home" for the Spotlight staff and everyone declares perfect enjoyment of that affair.

The success of the publications this past year depended very largely upon the effort and energy of Mr. Richardson; for this reason and a hundred others we're glad to thank him for past favors and wish him "all success in the future."

The Commercial Publication

The Keyboard, a paper consisting of ten pages put out by the Commercial Department, was first issued in the fall of 1923. The idea of putting out this paper was originated by Vera Shipley and Mr. Northrop, so Vera became the first editor-in-chief and Mr. Northrop the faculty advisor.

All of the work is done by the Commercial Department and by the equipment of the department. The Staff, chosen after careful consideration on the part of the Commercial teachers, brings in the material. It is then corrected, typed, stenciled, mimeographed, and assembled. The paper consists of business and school editorials, commercial news and notes, personal items, alumni and society news, jokes, cartoons, and a literary page.

The Keyboard is for the purpose of helping the school learn more of the Commercial Department, and with the loyal support of the entire student body it can always be a success. Many interesting issues have been put out this year under the capable supervision of Mr. Eyster.

The Official Publication of the Latin Department

The Fragmenta Latina, the official publication of the Latin department, is published twice a year by the Latin students. The paper was published for the first time six years ago and has constantly improved since that time.

The greater part of the paper is written in Latin, although a few articles are written in English. These, however, contain something which is of interest to the Latin students.

The two papers published this year were especially good. The language used in them may be dead, but the paper was the most modern type of paper published. Each issue had a cartoon on the front and all of the articles were written in fine style.

Most of the success of this paper is due, however, to its editors, James Anglin and Vere Kint, and Miss Gertrude Beierlein, the faculty advisor.

The purpose of the paper has been to create an interest in the Latin language in Central High School, and we might add that it has certainly lived up to its purpose.

Debating

Mary E. Cromer

Director of Debating

Miss Mary E. Cromer, the guiding light of our debators, has again been successful during the past year. The championship of the Northeast Indiana Debating League was won by Central for the first time in the history of the school. Personality, perseverance, and sportsmanship are the keywords to her success.

The Affirmative and Negative Debating Teams 1924-25 Champions

Central won the championship of the Northern Indiana Debating League this year by winning all four of its debates. The other teams entered in this debating league represented South-Side, Leo, Huntington and Bluffton. In the 1923-24 season New Haven was a member of this league and won the championship. This year, however, New Haven dropped out of the league and Bluffton became a member. The subject for this series of debates was: "Resolved, that the State of Indiana should be empowered to censor all Motion Pictures presented for commercial purposes."

At the first of the year there were eleven students who went out for the two teams. Finally the two teams were chosen as follows: Affirmative team, Ruth Hunt, Donald Close, Traverse Chandler and Margaret Ehrman, alternate; Negative team, Leah Peters, Paul Stier, David Heaton and Leonard Scheele, alternate.

The first debates were scheduled for December 11. On that date in the afternoon the Affirmative team won a unanimous decision over Huntington in the Central auditorium. That evening the Negative team journeyed to Bluffton for their debut in debating. The negatives also won a unanimous decision and so the first round of debating ended with Central holding the lead with two unanimous decisions and Leo, a close second, with two victories.

The second round in this series of debates was held on December 19. The affirmative team debated South-Side at South-Side and won by a two to one decision. This debate was very interesting but the most heated debate of the series was the one between our negative team and Leo. The Leo team had defeated South-Side the week before and the championship of the league really depended on the outcome of this debate.

Just at this time the negative team received a severe jolt in the illness of Leonard Scheele. He was unable to be in the Leo debate and John Shoaff, a Senior, substituted for him. Although with no previous experience, John worked admirably with the team and helped them to win this debate by a two to one decision.

By virtue of winning this debate Central became the champion of this league. This was the first year that a Fort Wayne High School won this honor and to the debaters and to Miss Cromer, the coach, a great deal of praise is due.

Much credit should be given to the business manager, Sol Schwartz, and Martin Schick who took entire charge of the business end of the debates.

At the end of the season the following students received debating pins in place of the customary letters: Ruth Hunt, Margaret Ehrman, Traverse Chandler, Donald Close, Leonard Scheele, Leah Peters, David Heaton, Paul Stier, John Shoaff and Ruth Knatz and Perry Thomas, members of the 1923-24 debating teams.

Robert Macbeth was chosen president, Charlotte Stier vice-president, and John White secretary. Laura Tenney, Clayton Merillat, and Harlan Robinson composed the social council. Miss Schwehn and Mr. Bills were chosen the faculty advisors.

A few weeks later a hard-times party was planned. The other classes offered very much pessimistic advice, declaring that no hard-times party had ever been successful. But, with the same spirit which they had displayed on previous occasions, the sophomores staged their party, and, to the surprise of many, it proved not only a social but also a financial success.

Not content with this, the '27's decided to publish a Sophomore issue of the Spotlight. Nell Gunn was again chosen editor-in-chief, and a few weeks later a complete issue was published, entirely without the assistance of the regular staff. This issue was pronounced one of the best of the year, and the sophomores may be justly proud of it.

Plans were also made by the class for a candy sale, which, when accomplished a few days later, proved quite a financial success.

In addition to these undertakings, the sophomores have boosted every affair staged by any other class or club. We predict a bright future for them, and in their two remaining years we are expecting great things from them.

In December the Juniors again showed their ability for doing great things by giving a dance for the entire school. The gym was artistically decorated in the class colors of blue and gold. During the evening refreshments were served and each guest was given a favor. The orchestra added much to the success of the party.

However, the star in their crown of glory was the Junior Prom. This was given May 1 at the Little Arts Theatre. Spiegel's Melody Men furnished the music. The prom surely was a great success and everyone who attended it will agree.

The class of '26 has had such a fine start that we are expecting many things from them in their Senior year.

Dramatics

Student Players Club

The Senior class of Central high school presented the play, "To the Ladies", on April 6 and 7 to large audiences at the Strand Theatre. It was a comedy written by George S. Kaufman and Marc Connelly. Miss Suter, under whose direction the play was produced, did not overlook any detail in making the play a success, the enunciation of the entire cast was remarkable for an amateur play and the settings and costumes were faultless.

The careful work in pantomime given in class work had developed unusual material, and the idea of demanding sincerity in the acting made this year's play a truly delightful one. Did you note Anne Weaver, as Mrs. Beebe, reading over Mr. Beebe's shoulder that disappointing notice about the fire? Anne was really reading. That kind of expression on the face of amateurs is not usually seen. Even professionals fail often to accomplish it. That touch was only one of dozens of such moments that made this play a satisfying performance.

One astonishing feature of "To the Ladies" was the number of players, more than in the "Charm School", more even than in the New York production of the play. Twenty-two banqueters dined at the John Kincaid dinner, and there was besides a haughty waiter, known to us as John Shoaff. John's haughty waiting did not prevent Mr. Henriei, the toastmaster (Donald Close) from being firm on the matter of clearing the table during the speeches. Mr. Henriei himself was flourishingly urbane, imbued with the seriousness of a John Kincaid banquet, deferential to the great piano manufacturer and altogether impressive as a presiding officer. After all, public speaking in Central's real life is not bad preparation for "toast-mastering" on the stage. Another of Central's public speakers, Traverse Chandler, the politician Mr. Cassidy, who had arrived from Washington to attend the dinner, pledged the Democratic party in truly round oratory to the support of the piano as the stabilizer of the home. The eye glasses with the wide ribbons were wonderful, and a great aid to flourishes. We found ourselves admiring the inquisitive upward turn of Hubert Roe's nose as he sat looking up at and sometimes retreating before, Mr. Cassidy's forensic onslaughts.

The finished effect of this banquet scene, both in setting and in pantomime, cannot be passed over without an extra word of praise. The curtain went up at the end of one of those monotonous and long winded addresses that occur only too often at banquets, Stirling Turner being the proser of the hour. Only excellent training could have turned Stirling into so good an elderly bore as that. One's first impression as the curtain rose was first of that marvelous blue background, and then printed against it, a long tableful of tired, variously behaving ladies and gentlemen of assorted ages. Each character was distinct. Each was, therefore, a major part. Martin Schiek as the deaf old gentleman who remained standing after the moment of silent tribute, was a major success as a "minor character". It was the marvel of this play that as acted by the "25's" there were no minor characters. One of the big hits was the few moments when the truckmen, Henry Kowalczyk and Poynter McEvoy, were trying to take away the piano. Poynter's fierce and unmistakable toughness was not less startling than Henry's Swede accent, stride, and generally terrifying calm. We can't mention all the major-minors, but Maurice Roth-berg was another whose brief part, that of the photographer, was a bit of perfect by-play. For the rest Margaret Holden's handsome, white-haired, matron effect, Allen Lomont's slender elderly distinction, Evelyn Richard's fan and vivacity—well, there were twenty-two at that table. Perhaps the mention of these will bring the whole scene back to you when you turn to this Caldron page somewhere up in the year '55, and remember those good old grads of thirty years gone by. And don't forget David Bernstein. He used to get A's remember, he was an educated boot-black.

But all this time the superb principals have been waiting. But who can forget them, even up in the year '55! Do you remember the oh's and the ah's for the beauty, vivacity, and intelligent playing of Anne, who was young Mrs. Beebe, sure that she would go on loving Leonard even if Baker did get the promotion instead of her husband? She made a real speech, not one out of a book, for him at the banquet when Baker stole every word of his thunder out of the book that cost three dollars, borrowed from Chester Mullin, and Leonard was struck with laryngitis at the awful moment Mr. Henri called his name. But small wonder that she believed in him for Leonard Beebe (Perry Thomas) was a lovably absent-minded but adoring husband who needed a charming wife to get him out of a clerkship into the position of confidential secretary which the unpleasant Baker might have had. We feel sorry for Baker (Howard Tenney). There was a lady with him at the banquet, but it must be that she was not so much of a help as Elsie or Mrs. Kincaid.

Vere Lipkey as Mrs. Kincaid was stunningly frocked and beautifully poised. She gave distinction to the picture, and matched well the authoritative manner of her handsome and prosperous husband, Ralph Popp. But the delightful satire of the plot turned on the point, as the program said, that "Nearly every man that got any place has been married, and that couldn't be just a coincidence." A good deal of fun of this satire and many of the good lines fell to the amazing Chester Mullin (John Rondebush). His heart was in vaudeville. There his checked clothes should have taken him, but somehow he stayed with Kincaid's, in the filing department. He had no wife, perhaps if we had been writing the play, we would have married him to the stenographer (Florence Stirling). But she was such a snip, so observant and efficient, though pert, that I doubt whether Chester would have been happy. But with Chester, Beebe, and Kincaid making the company go so big, we personally refuse to give all the credit of "To the Ladies" to the actors alone.

The Seniors to be sure were determined to give the credit to Miss Suter, and they said it with lovely flowers. But she is quoted as saying that "you cannot make something out of nothing", which distinctly the seniors of nineteen twenty-five are not. She made that quite clear. So here's to you, Mr. Toastmaster, and all the ladies and gentlemen of Kincaid's, one last toast to "To the Ladies".

Marjorie Suter

Director of Dramatics

Who began saying that certain leisurely types of people were "slow as a stage-coach?" That mistaken person lived before the speedometer began registering the rapidities of our stage coach here at Central. She is Miss Marjorie Suter, who has returned to us after a year in New York in the studio of the Russian Players. Naturally we have all of us, director, players, and critics, felt the added interest of watching the effect of that year's work. And it did count. "To the Ladies" was in detail the most notable of an ambitious series given by senior classes under Miss Suter's direction during the last five years. "Milestones", "Prunella", "Charm School" and "To the Ladies."

From the front rows we have enjoyed the "points," laughed, we trust, at suitable moments, wept where tears were due, and fallen in love with the leading man (we are feminine) at each of these plays in succession.

Now the townspeople have found out Miss Suter's work. They come in increasing numbers to this event of the senior year. Many of them make a point of attending the regular plays put on by the Student Players, the dramatic club of Central inaugurated by the director. We owe much of our interest in Central activities to this talented "Stage Coach" whom we have learned to admire and love.

Director of Music

Mr. William R. Sur came to Central to take charge of the music department when the work of the two schools was divided. Mr. Sur has proved to be a valuable addition to the faculty. His enthusiasm and versatility, coupled with ability of natural leadership, have developed an unusual music department in this school. In addition to his achievements, Mr. Sur holds the distinction of being the youngest man on the faculty. "The Big Little Man."

The Music Department

For many years the world in general failed to appreciate the value of music in its civic life, but within the last few years great interest has been aroused in the spreading of good music. So it was in Central—For many years music held no real place in our school life and then people began to realize the need of music in a high school. Consequently, this year intense efforts were put forth to give music the place it deserves in a high school. The first step was to get an energetic competent supervisor for this department—these requirements were met by William R. Sur, formerly the supervisor of music at Angola. Mr. Sur has become a very "true blue" Centralite and has tried to make this "Central's year" in music as well as in sports.

The Glee Club work was put into the regular school curriculum as other schools have done instead of after school, and remarkable results were obtained by using this method. The Girls' Glee Club had an average of one hundred and fifty members throughout the whole year, making possible the presentation of the Cantata, "The First Christmas Morn" by Adolphe Coerne, given at Christmas, and during the second semester, "Pan", by Paul Bliss. In addition to the enjoyment received from this club, an half of a credit is given for a term. Another vocal organization was the Boys and Girls' Glee Club. This group has been very active all through the year, singing carols at various places at Christmas time and presenting the operetta "Polished Pebbles" by Carrington. The Faculty Quartet and the Girls' Quartet sang frequently for both school and outside activities.

THE ORCHESTRA

CAST OF "POLISHED PEBBLES"

FACULTY QUARTETTE

Central always needed a real orchestra, and when Mr. Sur took charge he pepped the organization up so that the membership increased fifty per cent, making the Centralites proud to say, "Oh yes, we have a real orchestra." This orchestra played at many school and community functions, among which were: The Forest Park Grade School Dedication, the Pageant, Kiwanis Club, the county meeting of the W. C. T. U., and Graduation.

Our dream for a school band was realized in October immediately after the School Board purchased the necessary instruments. Mr. John L. VerWeire was appointed as instructor of the band instruments and free lessons were given to any Freshman or Sophomore who desired to play in the band. The first appearance of the band was in March when the new organization received a great ovation from the student body.

Perhaps nothing has done more to rouse the enthusiasm of the student body than our drum corps. It appeared at almost all our games and usually made a very creditable appearance, but since the band has been organized Mr. Sur has decided to disband the drum corps.

In addition to these extra activities, Mr. Sur offered classes in Music History and Harmony which were received with enthusiasm by the students.

Central has greatly appreciated the sincere efforts which Mr. Sur has put forth to make the Music Department a success and is willing to back him next year in whatever way it can.

SOROSIS LITERARY SOCIETY

Sorosis Activities

The Sorosis Literary Society is an organization of girls who are 10 A's and above. It is under the able supervision of Miss Hawkins, who takes a decided interest in all school activities. The membership is limited to sixty. Meetings occur every other Thursday.

The motto of the club is "To Be Intensely Something." The policy of the literary programs as given by the girls themselves is to carry out this motto. During the first semester the club was represented by the good ship "Sorosis". "Sorosis" sailed to various foreign ports and stopped at the important cities. The crew and its members visited these towns by pictures and stories concerning the customs peculiar to the towns. Each holiday had a special program, which was devoted to explaining the origin of the holiday. The programs for the second semester were based on the general topic, "America First". Among other interesting programs slides from Yellowstone National Park were shown.

The Sorosis Society has shown a decided interest in all school activities and has not only benefited the girls in a literary way but has also aided the school in the decorations for athletic meets.

HI-Y CLUB

During one more year the Central Hi-Y Club was active from beginning to end. The Setting Up Conference was held at Tri Lake, at which the programs and topics for the meetings were definitely decided upon. With affairs all prepared for a full and worth-while year, the weekly banquets began. Mr. Croninger and Mr. Dilts were always there to lead discussions, and tender helpful ideas. Mr. Brunson, too, was ever ready to do anything in his power to help the club.

The first big meeting of the year was a huge success. The problems of the athlete were carefully considered and fully discussed. Four fine discussion meetings followed; first the "Outdoor Life" was talked over, then the problem of the "misfit" in school, next school regulations, and last the problem of "Cribbing". One of the meetings was devoted to a Father and Son banquet. Mr. A. E. Thomas, as toastmaster, kept things moving along in a lively and interesting manner, and the program was concluded with the play "Father Ex Officio." Two more discussions preceded the annual Hi-Y frolic, which took the shape of a hard times party. "What Girls Expect of Boys" was the last discussion meeting of the first semester.

A new system calling for Bible study at each meeting, was instituted, with Mr. Brunson leading each study. Some of the discussions of the spring semester were, Social Life in the School, Abraham Lincoln, George Washington, Leadership, Convictions, and Dancing. Two of the finest sessions of the semester were devoted to a teachers' banquet and a Mother and Son banquet.

The Hi-Y Club has worked, lived, and enjoyed every minute of its meetings. It did some real work, it made some lasting impressions, and most of all it made us worth while Central students and live Y'ers. Thus the Hi-Y Club has fulfilled its purpose "To create and maintain throughout the school and community high standards of Christian character."

FRIENDSHIP CLUB

The Friendship Club during the past year has intensely lived up to its name. The enrollment was in the eighties, and every Junior and Senior girl who attended felt that she was getting the worth while things from the club. The girls were truly "creating a friendly spirit among high school girls, developing habits of helpfulness, and promoting growth in Christian Character."

An interesting meeting of the fall was the joint meeting of the So-Si-Y and the Friendship club. The theme for the meeting was "Loyal to Friends," the girls wrote letters to the Japanese girls of Kobe, Japan, and told of their various activities in the Y. W. C. A. The train idea was used for one of the meetings, and the girls bought their tickets for entrance to the train. In reality they were paying their dues. A clever playlet in one of the meetings showed the girls how they might develop into the healthy and happy "Y" girl.

The social good times of the club were not neglected and at the end of each meeting Pauline Bowerfind, chairman of the social committee, aided by Miss Schwehn, had a clever idea of games to play. The party-dance given in the spring was an especially successful social event. About twenty couples spent the evening dancing in the Y. W. C. A. clubrooms. One of the happiest entertainments is the banquet, at which the girls entertain their mothers. This is an annual affair and has never yet failed to be a happy time for both the mothers and girls.

Another phase of the club is the service work, which in the past year included the sending of three Thanksgiving baskets to worthy families and giving a donation to the treasury of the Associated Charities.

Next year the club will fall into the hands of the Junior members, who are a peppy lot of girls, and who can well carry on the year's work.

MATHEMATICS CLUB

The Mathematics Club of Central High School was organized December 4, 1913, by the members of the class of 1914 under the supervision of Mr. D. W. Werremeyer. The purpose of the club is to bring to all who are interested in Mathematics those phases of the subject which could not be presented in the class room, and which were beneficial, interesting, and within the comprehension of high school students. The membership was originally limited to members of the two upper classes, but was later extended to all who had finished the 10B mathematics.

Ever since that first meeting in 1913 the Math Club has been one of the largest and most active clubs of school.

The programs for the year were of exceptional interest. Wayne Morrill, a former active member of the Math Club, gave an explanation of his own invention, the "Function Meter." He constructed this while a student in Purdue University in 1923. This machine mechanically solves equations of any degree involving one unknown.

Miss Gardner's discussion of "Some Higher Plane Curves" made the members realize how strangely some of the functions of mathematics act on graph paper. Among other speakers of interest were Miss Christman, who spoke on "How to Multiply on One's Fingers," Miss Sites, who spoke on "Uses of Mathematics," and Mr. Croninger, who spoke on "Magic Squares."

The club in the past year has maintained its reputation for good times. The social committee furnished the amusement after the programs. A cross-word puzzle of mathematical terms was presented one night, and this novel method of entertainment proved highly enjoyable to all.

Through the twelve years of its successful career the Math Club has always been to its devotees a triangle of knowledge, enjoyment and good fellowship, inscribed within the circle of wise counsel and friendly co-operation of the teachers of mathematics.

JUNIOR HI-Y

The Junior Hi-Y Club is an organization composed of the freshmen and sophomore boys of the Central and South Side High Schools. Its purpose is to create, maintain, and extend high standards of Christian character among its members. The club motto is "Clean Speech, Clean Sports, and Clean Habits".

Meetings are held every Wednesday evening at the Y. M. C. A. clubrooms. The meetings are in the form of a banquet, after which a round table discussion is held. Among the many interesting and educational talks given during the past year were "Lincoln's Chances," by Colonel D. N. Foster; "The Olympic Games," by Miss Hawkins, and "Girls" by Miss Lewis.

Two very successful parties were held during the year. The first one was a Halloween party. The other, the Christmas party, was another huge success. Games, talks, and refreshments were combined to form the evening's entertainment.

Banquets form another important factor in this club. At the Father-Son Banquet, Raymond Ewell spoke concerning "Fathers" and his father responded on "A Father's Viewpoint of His Son". The Mother-Son Banquet, in the spring, was an equally successful banquet. Parents and sons take a decided interest in these annual banquets.

In the spring plans are made for the boys' camp life, at which the outdoor life of the boys is developed.

The U. P. D., a club composed of freshmen and sophomore girls, was proud to start last fall with 90 members. Besides the regular club activities, hikes, parties, and general good times, the girls paid a great deal of attention to the first word of their purpose, "Usefulness". In October "Candy Day" was made a happy memory to several ladies when they received boxes of candy from the club. At Christmas time the Y. W. C. A. club rooms presented the appearance of Santa's gift shop; several days later Santa turned the gift shop into a truly party-land where twenty children were made happy with gifts, games, candy, ice cream and the general Christmas spirit.

The second semester opened with U. P. D.'s dubbing themselves the Knights of the Blue Triangle, and followed that theme for the remainder of the year. Over one hundred freshmen and sophomores made the club better than ever. On St. Patrick's day fifty hospital patients received cheery greetings from the club members.

Spring is never quite perfect without a girl and boy party. March 28th the club rooms were filled with U. P. D.'s and their boy friends. The decorations, effective boutonnieres, games, and dancing made an evening so enjoyable that everyone was sorry to see it come to a close.

The last meeting was held in the open, at which time officers for the fall were installed and plans were completed for sending representatives to the High School Conference at Saugatuck, Michigan.

The Platonian Literary Society was founded in September, 1916, for the purpose of improving the members in public speaking and debating. With this purpose in mind, the club has steadily grown and has accomplished much in the nine years of its life. However, when public speaking became a part of the school curriculum and debating was placed under the supervision of a coach, the Plats turned their attention to the study of parliamentary law and devoted their meetings to short speeches and discussions.

The meetings are held every other Wednesday, at which time several of the members give five-minute talks on subjects which are of current interest. There is then a general discussion.

In the plans for the season the officers did not neglect the social affairs which are necessary for the success of any organization. The foremost event of the year was the Platonian dance given for the members of the club and their friends. In order to make this a successful affair, the students of South Side were also invited.

The dance, which took place during the Thanksgiving holidays, was held at the Little Arts Theatre. The hall was beautifully decorated, in gold and lavender, which are the club colors. The programs were also made of gold and lavender paper.

Another event is the annual Platonian banquet, which is held every year in the banquet room of the Y. M. C. A.

Although the students take an active part in the club, much of its success is due to the efforts of Mr. Aldred, its faculty advisor, and also head of the Botany Department. A novel feature was planned for the purpose of making the club better known throughout the school. Little gold tags with the following inscription printed on them were worn by every member of the club: "I Am a Plat."

Mr. Veatch-Advisor
RADIO CLUB

Donnison Linaberry-Secretary

Radio Activities

The Radio Club has just completed the first year of its existence at Central High. Mr. Veatch was selected by the club as advisor. The radio enthusiasts get together in room 333, perhaps better known as Mr. Veatch's room, every other Friday night and are entertained by talks and demonstrations arranged by the program committee.

The program committee has tried to illuminate the black mystery surrounding the intricacies of radio by having such men as Mr. Chester Hall, of the General Electric Company, and Mr. Hull, of the Indiana Extension faculty, give demonstrations and talks of real technical value.

Besides the technical discussions, the program committee arranged several social gatherings. Especially notable among the latter were the trips to the lake which the club took this spring. The members who had cars did the transporting and received their lunch free as a reward for their efforts. The time was spent in jumping into the water and freezing to death—a pastime which some humorously referred to as swimming; in playing baseball and other sports; in experimenting with a small portable transmitter which the club members had constructed; and in eating.

Besides giving the members a social good time and increasing their technical knowledge, the club assists the members in solving their own personal difficulties and problems in the course of their adventures into the unknown. If in the construction of a set or in trying some new principle on their receiver, they meet with difficulties which they have not the technical or practical knowledge to solve, the problem is brought before the club, and if any member has had any experience with that same difficulty, he helps the former member. If there is no one in the club who has solved the problem for himself so that he could be of use to the one in need, the problem is taken, by one of the officers or a member appointed by them, to Mr. Coolidge of the Fort Wayne Radio Laboratories or to Mr. Cornish of the Wayne Radio Company. Many members, new at the game, have been greatly aided in this way.

THE BOOSTERS CLUB

The Boosters Club, perhaps the most alive club of the school, gave Central some real boosting the past year. Under the able direction of Miss Hawkins, they originated and carried through some novel ideas for Central's games. Its members consisted of a student representative from each class and club of the school.

During the football season the club provided the refreshments and stunts for the games. It was through the Boosters that the "Fighting Central" football badges were sold. All the visiting teams were met and entertained by representatives of the club. Often the visiting team found that their colors were floating over their section of the stadium. The blue and white flags that waved over the stadium were made by the Boosters Club. Just before the South Side-

Central game, Central raised her colors high into the sky by gas-filled blue and white balloons.

The Boosters kept the school "pepped up" and the school spirit high in the basketball season. Some of the best pep meetings Central ever had were carried out by the club. In the Central-South Side game, the Central rooting section was a mass of blue and white, as a result of the blue and white plumes made by the club. The Boosters got new "Tiger" badges when the team entered the sectional and all the decorating of the gym was effectively done by Booster members.

The first year of the club has been a marked success, and it has developed school spirit in Central to its highest degree.

Miss Hawkins

Within the portals of Central there is one snappy-eyed, dark-haired, pep-inspiring individual, who goes by the name of Miss Hazel Hawkins. She graduated from the University of Chicago in—well, she wouldn't say when, and, in her own words, "she wasn't bright and she wasn't dumb". After teaching at Anderson, she came to Central, where she has been active as the advisor of the Boosters Club and Sorosis.

Her hobby is horseback riding, and in the pursuit of this she spent one summer touring the west, dancing with the cowboys and hobnobbing with the Indians.

Miss Hawkins thinks she is very old-fashioned—she has never worn galoshes, has long hair and has never worked cross-word puzzles. In spite of these ideas, she did shorten her skirts when short skirts became stylish.

Much credit should be given to this enthusiastic booster, who, many times, has given all she has to give Central a real place in the sport world. Little do the students realize how much effort Miss Hawkins has put forth when the student body refused to help her. Let us say this for her—she is the kind of a teacher who will eventually make Central's fame spread far and wide!

STUDENT PLAYERS' CLUB

The Student Players' Club was re-organized in September, 1924, after having been disbanded for a year due to the absence of Miss Suter, director of Dramatics.

Immediately, the work on plays was started. The first play was "Op-O'-Me-Thumb." It was a lovely one-act play which was full of human interest with its comedy as well as pathos. The scene was laid in a laundry in England and "Op-O'-Me-Thumb" was a dreamy little "workin'" girl with a sensitive nature and an imagination. The play was met with great favor by the student body and was presented for the parents on Open House Night.

A fantasy in pantomime, "The Seven Gifts," was given as the Christmas program in connection with Girls' and Mixed Chorus. This pantomime was again presented for the pleasure of the Alumni at the Little Art Theater. The new members of the club entertained the alumni at this reception, and a number of the faculty members were guests of honor. This reception was the big social event and served to bring the alumni and present members closer together.

The next play was "The Three Pills in a Bottle." This was a delightful story portraying the dream of a little sick boy. In it the souls of people he knew came and played with him while his mother was out working. This, too, was appreciated by the students and came up to the precedent established by the former plays.

The aim of the Student Players' Club is to promote the production of good plays, and to help cultivate in the school a taste for that type.

The requirements for eligibility are very strict, namely, member of a play cast, stage managing, and material assistance in the production of plays. The club has been very successful this year and has grown to its former standard.

SPOTLIGHT CONCERT

"Say, who is that rather tall, thin, fellow with the big black spectacles that one always sees rushing busily through Central's halls?" a stranger might ask—

However, there is no doubt of his identity in the mind of any Centralite and with one word they proclaim him "Mr. Sur" and he's the fellow that staged that great Spotlight Concert—for the benefit of the Spotlight.

It was a concert as had never before been equalled in Central. Our orchestra played with great ability and talent. We might be safe in saying that such an orchestra has never been produced in Central since the orchestra has become a part of our school life. Its success was equalled only by the initial appearance of our faculty quartette. Other musical numbers aided in making it an ever-to-be-remembered by all as both most pleasing and beneficial.

JUNIOR PROM

Extra! Extra! The Juniors easily captured the laurels for May by giving a Prom—or rather the Prom—in the Little Art Theatre, May 1st. Everyone knew the Juniors were a pretty good crowd, but they didn't know they had quite so much "go" in them.

For talent they certainly have! The theatre was the superlative of cleverly decorated, with Japanese lanterns throughout used as a keynote, including the programs. Spiegel's Melody Men, a peppy five-piece orchestra, furnished the inspiration for dancing, talking and—well, you know the rest.

PLAT DANCE

Around Thanksgiving, when things were sort of dead in Central, the Platonian Literary Society, consisting of a lively crowd of Central fellows, staged a dance at the Little Art Theatre.

The hall was cleverly decorated in the Platonian colors, purple and gold, and each dancer was presented with a purple and gold ribbon. The Club Royale Orchestra, directed by "Gillie" Meyers, furnished the music for a most successful dance, supported by every Central student, from the smallest freshman to the largest senior.

JUNIOR PARTY

Probably one of the most successful events of the year took place on January 22, when the Junior Class presented a party-dance for the entire school. The way in which this entertainment was carried out very well shows the ability of the Juniors in leading Central in all its social functions next year.

During the course of the evening, the Juniors displayed their ingenuity by arranging the most novel games, one of which was to divide their crowd into five large groups for the purpose of working crossword puzzles. The most nimble-witted persons received attractive prizes. Then, to make everyone present better acquainted with everyone else there, a handshaking game was next instituted. Everyone will agree that the Juniors were the first to think of this novel way to keep the party as lively as possible.

Soon the orchestra was heard to play. We might add that the Juniors did not overlook this part of the program and had obtained the finest orchestra possible. Soon everyone was gliding about the gym in time to the strains of jazz music to which one could not but help dance. During the grand march, candy corsages were presented to all of the dancers.

At the close of the evening delicious refreshments, consisting of home-made punch and cake, were served with the help of the Parent-Teachers Club.

SOPHOMORE TACKY PARTY

The semi-annual festivity of the Sophomores was an unusual success in the form of a tacky party. Our own gym was the scene of the gaiety, which included dancing, contests, and games. Clever prizes were awarded to the winners and also to the couple most tackily dressed. A grand march and refreshments gave the evening the final touch of perfectness.

THE PRESS CLUB

Readers of the Caldron will wonder why the Press Club item is not in the club section of the book, and we in answer will tell them that the Press Club was not organized in time that it might occupy a place in the club section, for it takes a long time to make up a club section. But we might add that most of the members of the Press Club—in fact, all of the members of the club—have their pictures in the publication section of the Caldron.

The Press Club was organized at the end of the second semester of the year nineteen twenty-five in order that publication interests might be furthered through the efforts of this club and that more might be accomplished in the way of press than would have been accomplished otherwise. Although this is the first year that the idea of a Press Club has been carried out, there is no doubt in the minds of both members and advisors that it will be the most successful club in the school and will accomplish just as much for the benefit of Central as the Boosters' Club and our other clubs. Through the efforts of the Press Club, more talent will be located within the portals of Central and, with the acquisition of more talent, the result will be an All-American School Paper and an All-American School Annual.

At the first meeting of the Press Club, which was held at the school, Howard Tenney was elected president, Maurice Rothberg was elected vice-president, Elsie Erdman secretary and David Bernstein was elected treasurer. The requirements for the officers of the club were that they be major members of either the Spotlight or Caldron Staff. The second meeting of the year was held at the home of Ruth Schneider, at which the club discussed the kind of pin which would represent the Press Club and also discussed other business which usually confronts a new club. After the business meeting, everyone adjourned to the dining room, where delicious eats were served. The Press Club proved themselves just as capable of eating a few sandwiches as they were capable of writing a few articles. By the time the Caldron is published, the Press Club will have had a few more meetings and, although it is impossible for us to predict the outcome of the meetings and the benefits that this club will give to Central, we are certainly sure that they will be of the best.

SENIOR BARN DANCE

The one (?) solemn duty of the seniors is to keep the school awake. Especially is this their duty in the fall. So in October they gave the school a jolt by staging a barn dance. Insufficient means for transportation to the barn gave the Seniors a chance to use their usual ability of overcoming obstacles and the dance was held in the gym.

A peppy orchestra, a steady downpour of confetti, and typical Hallowe'en refreshments made an evening long to be remembered in the minds of each Senior.

Alice: Polly turned down the young doctor that's been rushing her.

Helen: Well, what of it?

Alice: And now he has sent her a bill for 87 visits.

POLISHED PEBBLES

Our poor band—they have no uniforms! Never worry, says Mr. Sur and Miss Suter, we'll put on an operetta and make some money so our band can have some uniforms.

So "Polished Pebbles" was the result. This clever operetta by Carrington was staged by a cast chosen from the Mixed Chorus. The main characters were Traverse Chandler, Ruth Knatz, Florence Blosser, Evelyn Richard, Clementine Foster, Ervin Aumann, Marcille Link, Mildred LaRue and Milton Rosenthal.

An interesting plot, clever music, and a magnificent chorus of farmer boys and girls made a perfect entertainment for a perfect evening.

THE BATTLE OF BUNKER HILL

Saturday dawned bright and clear, and as the children had no school that day, Aunt Hannah suggested that they all go on a picnic.

"My dears," she said, "this is the 17th of June and there is going to be a lovely battle out on Bunker Hill. Wouldn't you like to go?"

The suggestion was received with shouts and clapping of hands. They put up a nice basket-lunch and set out in the carry-all for Charlestown. The Cambridge Woods were decided upon as a nice place to stop and lunch, but the children were too excited to eat much. They arrived in Charlestown about an hour before the battle was scheduled to commence, so they were able to get nice seats on the monument steps.

The little dears could not contain themselves when they saw all the colorful uniforms, and they shrieked with glee. Little Mary looked up shyly at Aunt Hannah and said cutely, "I do hope the British win—they have such pretty red suits!" "Aw no," said Johnny like the real boy that he was, "you should cheer for your home team!"

The crowds were beginning to arrive in great numbers, for this was to be a very spectacular event and had been widely advertised. Promptly at two o'clock the battle began and my, my! Such a noise! Guns popping and yells—you can't imagine! Even the ships in the harbor got into the fun and shot off their guns. Johnny got very excited and wanted to kill an Englishman, so after a little persuasion, big-hearted Aunt Hannah bought him a gun, and after three tries he shot one.

Then it was time to go—but first they went to the drug store and all had ice-cream sodas, then climbed in the carry-all and started for home. They heartily kissed Aunt Hannah and declared it was the best time they had ever had.

MURRAY MENDENHALL

The second member of the pair of new coaches to assume duties here at Central was Murray Mendenhall, who soon became known to all as "Mendy". Mendenhall was a college chum and teammate of Bills at DePauw University and, like Bills, he came here to do all in his power for Central. On his arrival at Central "Mendy" promised to do his best, and he certainly has, to the satisfaction of the entire student body and faculty. "Mendy" is an athlete from the start, and what is more important—he is able to impart his knowledge to his players. Mendenhall now has the distinction of being the first Central coach ever to pilot a Tiger team through to a sectional championship. It is indeed, in a great part, due to the never-ceasing activities of "Mendy" that the Tiger five got where it did. So it is with sincere gratitude that we voice our appreciation for "Mendy's" earnest efforts and fine results, and say that we are indeed proud and fortunate to have him as our coach.

MR. MARK BILLS

Last September the confidence of Central was renewed by the presence of two new coaches, Bills and Mendenhall.

One of these, Mark Bills, came here with an enviable reputation from Noblesville. The task confronting him was to successfully pilot the football and baseball teams of Central through a season that would be a credit to the school. Much to the credit of Mr. Bills, this task was well carried out, and indeed we as a school owe a great deal to him for his untiring services and the interest shown toward us. Mr. Bills has gained city-wide renown since he has come here. Due to his diligent and efficient training, Bills has developed men who should be able to put Central on the long end of the score in the games of the coming seasons.

MR. NORTHROP

This portly gentleman has had charge of all the finances with which Central has had to cope. He was an efficient business manager of class funds and athletic funds and we might say that through him a great many financiers have been given to the world, for it was under his training that treasurers and former business managers of both Spotlight and Caldron carried on their work. It is also through his able management that our athletic teams have been equipped with the best equipment available. He has handled finances for the athletic association in such a manner that at the end of the year the assets were much greater than its liabilities. He has also found time to teach commercial classes efficiently that the business world might be advanced through the efforts of young stenographers and bookkeepers.

Football Summary

Columbia City vs. Central

(Forfeited)

Once again ere things were well settled in the renewal of school activities, the first football game demanded its share of attention. Its demands were well answered, for everyone looked forward to a winning team and prospects were favorable. Marks, Berdleman, Worten, Baker, M. Popp, Paulsen, Raudebush and Nobles from last year's squad, augmented by Kowalczyk, T. Popp, Ramsey, Martin, and Zinc and Todd from out of town, presented a mighty impressive outfit. So with affairs in good shape, we took the field against Columbia City, the opponents in our opening game.

For some reason or other, things did not work just right in the first three quarters and at the end of the third session the C. C. eleven had garnered fifteen points while Central was just fifteen points behind. But at the end of the quarter "Red" Paulsen took the quarterback part and started a beautiful rally which carried the Tigers to the front. Before long the score stood 20-15 with Central leading, mainly due to the brilliant offensive work of Baker and Paulsen. Not content with that great showing, the Tigers kept clawing away till at the final gun they were but three yards away from another touchdown. The "C" men had started out the season with a typical "Fighting Central" victory.

Bluffton vs. Central, Sept. 27
(Forfeited)

In their second battle of the season, the Tigers found the Bluffton eleven fairly easy. Without employing trick plays or forward passes, the Central men ripped their opponents' line and slid off tackle for repeated gains. Frauhiger, of the Bluffton squad, saved himself and his teammates from a shutout by grabbing a Central pass and dashing sixty yards to a touchdown. Although lacking in features, the game showed Central's ability in straight play and willingness to fight. In line gains, Raudebush, Lange, Todd, Baker, and Paulsen all did high-class work. Tom Popp displayed himself well in defensive play.

Emerson of Gary vs. Central, Oct. 11

Central's one hundred per cent record received a rude jolt in the third attempt of the year, for Emerson of Gary proved too much for the Tigers. Directly following the two victories, the Gary eleven took a one-sided battle by a 77-0 score. However, the game was not nearly so much to the discredit of Central as to the credit of Emerson. They had an irresistible line attack, a sweeping run machine, and a beautiful forward pass combination, either one of which was more than any Central defense could cope with. Hughes, Mohardt, Shay and Cavanaugh ran roughshod over all manner of opposition until the seventy-seventh point was reached. So earnest were the endeavors of the Central men that Marks, Stiegler, and Zink were removed from the game with injuries.

Decatur vs. Central, Oct. 18

Deprived of victory the week before, the Tigers stepped down to Decatur determined to renew their victories. But Central on this day suffered one of her very uncommon off days and simply couldn't get started, so the reports read "Decatur 14, Central 6". The Tigers had a discouraging tendency to fumble, which was greatly responsible for the loss. Early in the first half, a Central fumble virtually donated seven points to the Decatur score. However, the Tigers showed a flash of ability and retaliated by marching down the field to score six points. Then in the final period the two elevens fought for all they were worth to obtain a commanding lead, but all to no avail for Central. A blocked kick was scooped up and carried over the goal by a Decatur man. Fumbles and messy playing had beaten the Tigers, but this loss seemed to do them good, a fact which was proved in the Plymouth game.

Plymouth vs. Central

For the past two weeks Central seemed to be somewhat hampered by ill luck, but now fortune had settled down heavily and severely over the Central Camp. Hank had been holding down the wing position in fine order, so Central suffered severely to have this star laid up with a broken arm. Then to top off the row of mishaps Al Marks, our other stellar end, received a severely fractured shoulder blade. Al had been doing more than his share of the work at his end position and his incapacitation, coupled with that of Hank, was by no means a slight setback—to our hopes. But, misfortune or no misfortune, the Tigers went out against Plymouth without a doubt concerning the outcome. Baker couldn't be stopped, no more could Ramsey. These two, aided by Nobles and Hoekemeyer, carried the offensive burden, while Casey, our colored end, was a defensive star. So the Central men put forth everything they had, and at the final gun they were just sixty-six points ahead of Plymouth, with Plymouth's score 0.

Portland vs. Central

In their next encounter the Tigers picked up activities where they had left off a week ago and started out at once with a strong offensive. Before much playing had taken place the Tigers found themselves leading the field by seven points. But the Portland men quickly retaliated, one of their men intercepting a pass and then by carrying the ball over the goal line, cut our lead to a single point. In the third quarter Portland took the lead after an irresistible line attack which netted them a touchdown. Thus faced with the proposition of making a touchdown in the final quarter or taking a defeat, Central showed her real power. With Ramsey and Paulsen alternating at the running, the Tigers whirled down the field till a clever quarter back sneak by Paulsen put the ball on Portland's six-yard line. Still wanting to do more, "Red" snatched the ball and placed it over the line to tie us with the enemy. But fight as they would, no more scores came the Tigers' way, so the score stood at the end of the game Central thirteen, Portland thirteen.

Elkhart vs. Central, Nov. 8

Word had been coming our way of a formidable eleven in Elkhart headed by the well-known Peterson, said to be the most valuable backfield man in the state. Advance rumors were by no means false, for Elkhart seemed to experience little difficulty in running up a 54-0 score against Central in four periods. Peterson himself scored four times and demonstrated his broken field running ability by thrice making spectacular fifty-yard runs. The absence of Hank and Marks at the ends made Peterson's repeated gallops less difficult. Not content with displaying only a dazzling running game, the Elkhart team demonstrated uncanny forward passing ability, and many times hurled the ball far down the field to be caught and carried across the line. Central had two possibilities for scoring, but fumbles seemed ever present when these chances came. The simple truth is that Elkhart had a truly brilliant eleven which was more than "Fighting Central" could overcome.

South Side vs. Central, Nov. 15

The seven preceding ventures of the Tigers were of no small importance, but they

BOARD OF STRATEGY

CAPTAIN HENRY KOWALCZYK

To "Hank" Kowalezyk, the captain of the Tigers, goes a large portion of the credit for the great showing made by the Central basketball squad of the 1924-25 season. "Hank" was chosen as leader by his teammates directly before the first game of the year, and the Tigers never had the slightest suggestion of a cause to regret their choice. "Hank" had in him the quality of leadership which, coupled with his knowledge of the game, makes a leader truly followed by a team of stars. Aside from the fact that "Hank" could keep his team in hand and direct their actions, he himself was ever in the thick of the fight, his playing ability being recognized by the fact that he was a choice for positions on both the all-sectional and all-regional teams. As back guards go, "Hank" holds his own with any in our school history and with many in the entire state. "Hank" was a true captain, a hard fighter and a real sportsman well worthy of his position as captain of the "Fighting Central Tigers" of 1924-25.

Central vs. Sturgis

Although barred from the State Athletic Association until Jan. 15, the Central basketball men started promptly at the close of the football season and before the 15th of January was in sight they had shaped into one of the greatest court squads ever to represent Central. During their period of separation from the association, the Central men kept on plugging away at practice and held several test games. In these pre-season games the Tigers showed promise of some A-1 basketball. They ran away from the West Jefferson Church by a 55-9 score. They defeated the Alumni 40-13, and next the Simpson Church outfit 29-15. Following these easy victories, they lost a real battle to the Concordia Seconds, 30-25.

So, with the first schedule game close ahead, the Tigers were anxiously waiting to be unleashed, to taste their first real blood. The Tiger squad had worlds of strength with Kowalezyk, Nobles, Jasper, Morril, Baker, Scott, Diehl, and Wolf, all men of real ability, ready to do more than their share for Central.

These men met before the first game with Sturgis and elected Hank Kowalczyk as their captain. Then they stepped out on the floor and auspiciously won their first game by defeating the Green and White of Sturgis, Mich. The Tigers started out with a bang and had things pretty well their own way during the first half. However, at the start of the second period the Sturgis men fought their way into a two-point lead. But the Tigers, once more aroused to action, stepped out and away from the Northerners and at the final gun had a satisfying 46-32 victory to their credit.

Central vs. Young America

On the 15th of January Central celebrated the lifting of the ban by defeating Young America 31-26. It was the first game the Tigers played in the I. H. S. A. A. this season and from the opening whistle they fought with a determination that was not to be denied. Central piled up a comfortable margin in the first half that carried them through to victory, for in the second half Young America uncorked an offensive that threatened to rob Central's lead, honors, however, being equally divided. Nobles, Jasper and Diehl carried the offensive work, while Baker and "Hank" held down the defensive end of the game in faultless manner.

Central vs. Warsaw

The Tigers in their third effort of the season took down the strong Warsaw quintet, and incidentally displayed an almost faultless style of basketball play. The Central team work was down to perfection, and so functioned throughout the game. The Tiger offensive gained a six-point margin during the first half, and by uncorking an airtight defense the Tigers emerged victors after a hard, interesting struggle. It was fortunate for the Tigers that they were at their best, for it was only by their lightning floor game and strong defense play that they were able to pull out a 36-30 victory.

Central vs. Warren

The Tigers annexed their fifth straight victory, easily whipping Warren by the deciding count of 48-31. Warren's only hope in the game was Holmes, her classy little forward, who scored 19 of his team's points. The Central work was rather ragged in the first half, due to some extremely poor passing, so the first half was fairly close. In the second half, however, the Tigers showed their true style and, with some beautiful basket shooting, they pulled far away from the Warren five and so made it five wins out of as many attempts.

Central vs. South Side

With the South Side gym filled to the brim with wild, rabid basketball fans, "Hank" Kowalczyk led the Tiger five to a decisive, creditable victory over the Green and White of South Side. The four previous meetings of the Blue and Green had all been disastrous to Central, so this battle was one of the most glorious ever experienced by Central. The Tigers started out knowing that victory was ahead, and before the game was well under way they had amassed 12 points with the South Siders still fighting for their first. With the Central rooters half crazy with joy, the Green awoke and with an irresistible rally ran their score up to within four points of that of Central as the half ended.

In the second period, although they called all their power to the fore, South Side could not forge to the front. All their efforts were cancelled by the equally brilliant work of the Tigers, who stayed ahead to win a 25-18 victory. So all the men of the Central outfit showed the 3,500 fans what real basketball is. Every man in the game acquitted himself with honor, and it is to this Central team which goes the honor of administering the most decisive defeat ever given South Side by a Blue and White squad.

Central vs. Bluffton

The Central Tigers and Bluffton Tigers met at Bluffton in perhaps the hardest fought game for each squad so far. The Central men, somewhat handicapped by the small floor, were cheered on to a well earned victory by several hundred loyal rooters who journeyed to Bluffton to witness the game. The first half was a battle royal, with first one team ahead and then the other, the Central men grabbing a four-point margin at the whistle. The Wells County lads were no less determined in the second period, but Central made their shots count and added four more points to their margin of victory, winning 38-30. This game was the best of the season so far, both Tiger squads fighting tooth and toe nail, with Central just a little superior.

Central vs. Hartford City

With six hard-earned victories constituting an enviable record, Central was out to make it seven straight, although her opponent, Hartford City, was the strongest five yet to be met. However, just the night that they needed their very best form to annex a win, the Tigers displayed their poorest basketball to date. Their work was ragged from the start, and there was plainly a lack of even fair passwork or teamwork. Despite poor play, Central led at the half by one point, the score being 11-10. The Hartford squad jumped into an early three-point lead as the second half opened, but the Tigers opened up momentarily to fight into a tie. Then Hartford City grabbed a one-point margin, then Central, back and forth, until, with one minute left, the Hartford City floor guard sank a beautiful long shot. But try as they would, the Tigers couldn't avert their disaster, so they had their first bitter taste of defeat, with a final score of 26-25.

Central vs. Wolf Lake

Somewhat "het up" over their hard lose to Hartford City, the Tigers stepped on the train to Wolf Lake expecting a hard fight, but full of determination to win. Wolf Lake had a reputation for supporting first-class basketball squads, but taking that as added incentive to fight for victory, the Tigers made Wolf Lake the first victim on their new list of wins. The Central men were "hot" from the first minute to the last, dropping in field goals with little difficulty. They took an early lead and were never headed, the final count being 44-22. The Tigers had plainly stepped out of their poor form, and were out once more for some real basketball.

THE CENTRAL RESERVE

Unsung glory and praise go to the fighting Central Reserves squad. Aside from fighting nightly battles against the Tiger first squad, this plucky bunch of basketball cubs went out into the preliminary games and snatched some mighty worth-while wins from opponents of no mean ability. Leading up to their battle royal with South Side, the reserves ran away from the Wolf Lake seconds by a 32-12 score. Then, taking the floor against the South Side second stringers, the Tiger cubs displayed the best basketball of their career. In a battle declared by many as better than the main go of the evening, the Blue and White was carried to a hard-earned victory in a desperate battle from start to finish. Then, after an easy win over the Woodburn varsity, the scrubs hooked up with the Hartford City and Huntington second teams, both of whom furnished opposition which caused the Tigers to go the limit, winning both games in the final minute.

Once again the Blue and the Green met. This time, however, the Green, with a revised line-up, proved superior to the Tigers in a brilliant, fast pastime. Finally to top off a fine season, the reserves took a close battle from the Arcola varsity by a 21-25 score. Aside from the fact that the reserves did some fine playing, there is much to be said for them otherwise. They, as a team and as individual members, deserve worlds of credit for going out and daily offering their strength and vitality for Central, with so little glory and honor in the offing. They prepared our varsity for the tests before it; they established a fine record as a second team; and most of all, by training earnestly received, they prepared the way for winning Central teams in the future. Here in this book too much cannot be said for our reserves, who fought for Central's honor and not for personal glory.

SECTIONAL TOURNAMENT

Central swept through to the championship in the District Tourney as if things had been prearranged. In each of the four games the Tigers more than doubled the score on their opponents, and in the finals they capped the climax with an overwhelming 31-15 victory over South Side. The Tigers opened the tourney by swamping Arcola under a 57-17 count. Central led all the way, although Arcola put up a stiff fight against overwhelming odds. New Haven was the second team to face the Tigers and they fared little better than the Arcola team. Without exerting herself, Central pulled out ahead, the score being 36-7, thus counting the Tigers in on the semi-finals. Harlan had won her way to the semi-finals by an exhausting victory over Huntertown and was in a tired condition when she met Central. In contrast the Tigers' eyes for the basket were uncanny, and their team work of a brand which permitted them to shoot at will; consequently the Blue and White smothered the Harlan five under an avalanche of scores. The final gun gave Central 88 to Harlan's 5. This score was the largest local tournament, the largest ever run up by a Central team, and the largest score made by any team in tournament play in the state this year. So the Tigers had with ease gained the right to show their supremacy over South Side in the tournament finals.

In the final battle for the sectional supremacy the Tigers decisively whipped the Green in a beautiful battle which left not the slightest doubt as to which was the better team. The Tigers opened up the game with an overwhelming offensive attack, which availed them little, due to their inability to hit the net. Finding their eye in the second half, the Tigers caused the Green defense to wilt under a withering attack. The half opened up 8-7 in favor of South Side, but Hank and his fighting Tigers soon had the Central rooters in a fit of frenzied joy by going far out in front of the Green and White. At his backguard job Hank staved off attacks with brilliancy and regularity, while his co-workers, led by "Orlie" Nobles, who played the best game of his career, buried the South Siders under a one-sided count. Nobles, at forward, scored eleven points and was in every play. Jim Baker at floor guard couldn't have done finer work, while Morril and Jasper, playing flashy ball throughout, comprised the five which brought the first sectional championship to Central High.

REGIONAL TOURNAMENT

With but two victories between them and the state tournament, the Tigers entered the regional to do or die. Lancaster was the first barrier to Central's stateward drive, and by a late rally in the final period Central came out ahead 27-17. The Lancaster team held the Tigers on even terms in the first half and at the end of that period held the edge 11-10. The tall Lancaster players showed plenty of real ability and threw a temporary scare into the Tiger den. But in the second half the Tigers showed a reversal of form, staging one of the fastest and most effective rallies ever seen in Fort Wayne. Kowalczyk's airtight guarding kept the Lancaster men shooting from long distance, and the Tiger offensive scored 17 points to 6 for their opponents. Thus Central cleared one barrier and faced the last bar to her trip to the capital.

Milford met Central in a battle to the finish, each team positive that the other would not see action in the state finals. The Tigers were truly Tigers that game and fought harder than ever before, but the Milford five, presenting one of the fastest scoring trios ever to work on the South Side court, outclassed the Tigers in a heartbreaking struggle. The two teams fought neck and neck till near the end of the first half. R. Schultz, one of the Milford aces, dropped in three baskets to give his mates a 14-8 lead at the rest period. In the second half the Tigers came back with a brilliant, dashing offensive, but their shots wouldn't stick. As the game neared the end, the Milford men unfalteringly held on to their lead. The Tigers, desperate, fought as never before, tossing attempts from impossible angles; but to no avail, for the final gun found Milford ahead 19-11. Every Central student was heartbroken, but they had nothing except admiration and praise for those Central Tigers whose game fighting they will remember for years.

1925 Sectional Track Team

The Central track team, for the past five years winners in sectional meets, is again in line for those honors with men of high caliber doing their bit to keep up this record. Lomont, last year's captain and winner of second place in the state half-mile event, consistently won the distance events; Smith, this year's captain, starred in the 440; Nobles, Diehl and Kowalczyk were always point-getters in the field events; while Felger, Kepler and J. Shoaff held up Central's honor in fine style in the runs and hurdles. The Tigers opened up the season by winning the city-wide meet at the Y. M. C. A. over South Side, Pennsylvania Railroad Shops and General Electric. Following this victory, they were close seconds in a quadrangular meet with Portland, Decatur, and Auburn. Garrett fell easy victim to the Tigers in a dual meet, being smothered under a 72-24 count. Following this, in a triangular meet with South Side and Huntington, the Tigers thrilled the spectators in a spectaen-lar finish. They had been trailing the Green throughout, but snatched a victory by grabbing all three places in the broad jump, thus winning out by a 49-46 score, Huntington having garnered only four points. The remaining meets scheduled were with Columbia City and the annual sectional meet. First and second place winners are qualified to contest in the state meet. Central has high hopes for her track men this year, for nothing less than points in the state are expected from Nobles, Diehl, Kepler, Smith and Lomont, who, with their teammates, comprise a track squad well worthy to wear the C.

Baseball Nine

Baseball, the sport which had been lost to Central for several years, was revived by the Tigers in spirited fashion this year. Forming a team from inexperienced but willing players, the Tigers were molded into a nine which played airtight ball in the field, and one which could slam the ball to all corners of the lot. Herman Stiegler, the dependable, hard-hitting third baseman, was chosen captain of the squad, and led his team through a mighty fine season, with some excellent victories to their credit. The first game of the year was played against the Wolf Lake squad. The Tigers initiated the season in fine form by taking an easy 11-0 shutout. Howe was next in line for a beating and the cadets received an 8-2 drubbing, with the Tigers playing near perfect ball, batting when hits meant runs. Huntertown, with high hopes, received a most severe jolt when the Tigers scored runs almost at will, and ran up a 24-1 score against their opponents. After these easy wins, the Tigers took the short end of a 4-1 score at the hands of Bluffton. The Wells County team presented a well-balanced line-up, headed by a star pitcher, but it is certain that the result would have been different if Baker, who became ineligible, could have worked on the mound for the Tigers. Teams remaining on the Tiger schedule for the 1925 season included Decatur, Huntington and South Side, with other stiff opposition being sought to fill in on dates. Baseball has been reinstated in Central once more and the fine showing made by the team insured a secure place for the game in Central's activities for a long time to come.

Tennis Team

The Central tennis team of 1924, winner of the Rastetter trophy that year, remained intact to win further laurels in 1925. Dick Shoaff, the tiny captain of last year, was again out to bring tennis victories to Central and his able mates were Ralph Popp, Melvin Wolf, and Howard Buck. Dick Shoaff as captain rarely failed to win his singles matches, as did Ralph Popp, while Mel Wolf and Buck formed a doubles team whose speed and trickery proved superior to that of all comers. This quartet alternated in their positions, and every member was an individual star or worked as a star in co-operation with another. This team opened activities with a win over the Bluffton court men, a task which the team put across with ease, winning by a 5-0 count. Next they journeyed to Howe, where they won a brilliant match from the cadets 3-2.

Matches were yet to be played off with out-of-town teams and a series with South Side. The South Side, headed by Jim Wilson, are a mighty formidable team, but with past victories to come out on top. All of this tennis varsity, excepting Shoaff, graduate this year, and it is a difficult task which confronts the school next year, that of upholding the enviable record which this squad has established.

Girls' Athletics

Girls' Varsity

Under the direction of Miss Schwen, the popular girls' coach, the athletic activities of the girls moved along quietly, but vigorously, throughout the entire year. Practically all the lower classmen received benefit, while a great many upper classmen took part in the tournaments and games held with teams in the school and those outside. In the class workouts by Miss Schwen, the girls received great benefit from the floor work and exercises, and a new feature was introduced which proved very successful. This new feature was a posture test campaign, in which posture faults were corrected and the attempt was made to better the carriage of every Central girl. Then, too, many games of volleyball, baseball, and basketball were worked into the class schedule and the girls showed themselves to be a hard-working group, anxious to play and improve. Perhaps the biggest feature of the year was a spirited class basketball tournament. In the four games played the girls exhibited fight galore, and it was only by a hard "Tiger Fight" brand of ball that the seniors, captained by Marcille Link, were able to win first honors of the tourney. In the varsity basketball competition, the Tigerettes met the South Side varsity in two heated battles, South Side winning a fairly easy victory in the first game, but in the second contest the Blue showed their real mettle and lost out only in the last half minute when the South Siders took a hectic 16-15 game. With the basketball season over, the girls turned with just as much pep to the spring sports, baseball occupying the head line. Four games were scheduled with South Side by Mary Pratt, Central's manager, and the squad was practicing diligently to prepare a nine to down the Green and White. Another event of the spring was the horseshoe tournament, in which a great many girls took a lively interest.

GIRLS' TENNIS TEAM

One of the sports in which the Central girls showed unusual ability was tennis. There was unlimited material from which to choose a squad, but Evelyn Jacobs, Dorothy Miller, Aliee Yarnelle, and Alice Ferguson seemed to be certainties for places on the team, which was to meet Bluffton and South Side in series of matches.

CENTRAL GIRLS' ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

The Central Girls' Athletic Association is an organization formed by Central girls who take an active interest in sports. These girls not only carry on an intensive athletic campaign among themselves, but endeavor to spread such interest among all the girls of the school. Esther French was chosen president of this forward-looking club, and has contributed a great part in promoting girls' sports. Girls' athletic work has been booming this year, due to this organization. The girls were ever at work, and they brought no small honor to Central, a school where girls' sports are a step ahead of those in other schools. So under the leadership of Miss Schwen, the girls have done real work this year, and we are proud of their results.

Hilda Schwen

Director of Girls' Athletics

Several years ago a certain Hilda Schwen occupied her niche in the Central High School and then left for parts elsewhere. Last year she returned in a different capacity, not as a schoolgirl, but a full-fledged girls' athletic coach. Miss Schwen was a mighty fine student, but it is our opinion and an opinion adhered to by all that Miss Schwen is far more helpful to our school as a coach than as a pupil, due to her winning personality, her friendly spirit, her high ideals, and desires for better and finer things throughout. Through Miss Schwen's endeavors, there has been instituted in Central an efficient and result-producing program in girls' sports. Her class program has wrought unlimited benefits to Central girls, and her work in girls' basketball, baseball, tennis, and minor sports has reached a standard to be both envied and admired. It would seem that Miss Schwen's motive is to return good for good. She appreciated the things Central had done for her, and now she is back here doing her utmost to lift Central and Central's girls' athletics to a higher and finer level.

The Popp-Sullivan-Macbeth Trio

The Popp-Sullivan-Macbeth trio, with their new yells and songs, put the pep into Central that has made her stand out among all schools. The novel ideas exhibited at the games by her own cheer-leaders have attracted wide attention.

Ralph Popp gained his skill in the art through his efficient work with Scotty and Mickey. Kip Sullivan popped up new in the role at the beginning of this year and proved an able partner for Ralph. Of course our noted Boy Scout cheer-leader was added to form a partnership of brains, beauty, and fame.

As helpers to these served Sol Schwartz, Dick Shoaff, and Park Drayer, our cheer-leaders of future years.

The yelling record of the Tigers left by Popp-Sullivan-Macbeth will be one long remembered and admired by Central students.

Miss Sinclair

Director of Arts

Due to the efforts of this faculty member, the Caldron has had the exceptional art work that has been produced. She has supervised all of the art work that has entered this book and incidentally has helped out on some of it herself. Her motto has always been the motto of all the publications of the school, "an annual or publication published and worked on by the students and those directly connected with the school rather than let any outsider do the work". Miss Sinclair has supervised the art of other Caldrons, but we believe that she gave us more co-operation this year than any other annual has received. We, the Caldron staff of 1925, heartily thank her for her efforts and co-operation, and we certainly believe that the success of this annual is due in a great part to her.

SEPTEMBER

Sept. 8.
Even though he says he's not, everyone seems glad to be back.

Sept. 9.
Upper classmen seem to have it in for the Freshies this year.

Sept. 10.
Everyone is getting backache drinking at the new fountains.

Sept. 11.
Little Freshies ask if the Spotlight is always free.

Sept. 12.
They start in early to kid the teachers around here.

Sept. 13.
It is rather early to have discovered any interesting cases, but in a few weeks we will try to have some of this interesting current events.

Sept. 14.
Of course everyone went to Sunday school and then to church.

Sept. 15.
The Friendship Club's roof party was a great success, only it was not held on the roof. Better communicate with the weather man next time, girls.

Sept. 16.
The Senior pow-wow over who should be their officers is now over.

Sept. 17.
Being president is rather hard on the arm. Ask Milt if it isn't.

Sept. 18.
Unusual event: seats are being changed in the library.

Sept. 19.
Central's old fighting spirit was let loose at the first big pep meeting.

Sept. 20.
In the last quarter Central wins from Columbia City.

Sept. 21.
Let it be what you make it.

Sept. 22.
Mr. Kimes was very considerate today; he lost his test questions for his fourth hour class. General depression prevailed.

Sept. 23.
The Boosters Committee met behind closed doors. Wonder what they are up to now!

FIRST!

At the time this book goes to press, we will be completing our third year in business in Fort Wayne.

We are showing an increase of more than 25 per cent over last year and are doing more than three times the amount of the first year.

We appreciate the high school patronage.

It's being circulated around school that "Skinney" is liable to graduate this spring.
- Oct. 2.
The only exciting thing that happened today was the race—that is, the human race.
- Oct. 3.
Dorothy Lang bemoaned the fact that Tom Popp was hurt in the game with Bluffton, but we won anyway.
- Oct. 6.
The cast was chosen for "Op-o'-My-Thumb". Florence Stirling is the leading lady.
- Oct. 7.
Paul Stier and Melvin Wolf, using a paper wad and an ink well, played basketball in Miss Cromer's second hour English class. Bet Miss Cromer is wondering how she will ever live through the term with that class.
- Oct. 8.
Lillian Ponsot tried to make Miss Cromer believe that Guiana was in South America, on the Mediterranean Sea.
- Oct. 9.
All the teachers are giving tests now. Everyone has such a contented look on his face.

Nov. 11.

Anyone was lucky who had a fourth hour class, because the whistles made so much noise it was impossible to recite.

Nov. 12.

Sonny S. was arrested for speeding and this time he can't drive his car for three months.

Nov. 13.

Have you had your picture taken yet? Kip can't decide what to give his girl for a birthday present.

Nov. 15.

Defeated by South Side.

Nov. 16.

Everyone is collecting or paying his bets today.

Nov. 17.

A terrible predicament! Snow and no galoshes.

Nov. 18.

Strange how everyone thinks he ought to look beautiful in his pictures.

Nov. 20.

A select few enjoyed Johnnie Raudebush's luncheon of crackers in the library.

Dec. 3.
Great excitement! A window was broken in the library. Interesting events all seem to be taking place there.

Dec. 4.
Maurice Rothberg, Earl Kelsey and Milton Popp were kicked out of Latin.

Dec. 5.
In one of the chemistry classes, a balloon was inflated, and it gently floated out of the window. Such childish play for seniors!

Dec. 8.
Old Man Wind got rather playful with Page Robinson's new hat today.

Dec. 11.
Hubert Roe and George Bodine had a little fight. Mr. Croninger excused them for the rest of the day.

Dec. 12.
Both of our debating teams won the discussion on "Movie".

Dec. 15.
Starting "Get your lesson week". Of course everyone has his lessons.

Dec. 16.
"Duke" came out all decked up in a new leather jacket. George Bodine gave a number of people a milk bath at the Y. M. C. A. today. How awkward some people are!

Dec. 17.
Nobles urged on a fight in the alley this noon between two little "Freshies".

Dec. 18.

There is as yet no noticeable improvement in the lessons. Cheer up, teachers, tomorrow may bring a change.

Dec. 19.

Have you noticed the improvement in manners and attitude lately? Christmas is coming and Santa may be watching.

Dec. 22.

Some people are just starting in to buy Christmas presents. John Shoaff looked awfully sleepy today. He must have written a long letter to Santa last night.

Dec. 24.

Melvin Wolf stayed up late tonight waiting for Santa Claus.

Dec. 25.

Merry Christmas!

Dec. 26.

Santa Claus brought Florence Stirling the mumps.

JANUARY

- Jan. 1.
Everybody sat up until 12 o'clock making New Year resolutions.
- Jan. 2.
Everyone spent the day breaking his resolutions. 'Tis said that Tom Popp caught Vere under Sarah's mistletoe.
- Jan. 3.
Some of our industrious seniors put signs up for courtesy week. The mumps didn't like Florence very well—at least they left her.
- Jan. 5.
Dorothy Lawrence started the new year right by being benched. Maxine Harris seems to think a good way to start the new year is by falling.
- Jan. 6.
Did you notice something peculiar on "Noble's" face? He says it's a moustache. Roland Smenner is already tired of his class rooms; he prefers the office.
- Jan. 7.
Miss Cromer has confessed that she believes in witches. It's rumored that Pearl Koegel has the mumps.
- Jan. 8.
Fifteen were kicked out of the library today. Chet Ludwig was disappointed when he did not receive a blank to be filled out by the January graduates.
- Jan. 9.
Sturgis game. We can fight, can we not? Kip blames his black eye on to his megaphone (?).
- Jan. 10.
A party was given for the cast and helpers of "Nothing but the Truth".
- Jan. 12.
Perry seems to think that gibbet is the same as giblet. Such ignorance for a senior!
- Jan. 13.
Unlucky day for Mildred Lovin and Dorothy Lawrence, as they were given a furlough from the library until April 1st. How many does that make now, girls?
- Jan. 14.
Florence Blosser was honored by being assigned the honorable seat in the session room.
- Jan. 16.
Beat "Young America".
- Jan. 17.
Defeated Warsaw. Central's coming right along. What say?

FEBRUARY

- Feb. 2.
Our librarian says that she is going to get a victrola that will say, "Will you please stop that noise?" The football players were all spruced up in their new sweaters.
- Feb. 3.
Dorothy Lawrence is benched again. This time she was writing notes to Bud Manth.
- Feb. 4.
Here's something to talk about: Martha Rex received a long love letter from Russel Weiner.
- Feb. 5.
Did you notice the new red stockings Ruth Hathaway had on today?
- Feb. 8.
Anne Weaver went to Forum to see if Earl was there. Florence Stirling was there, but Perry failed to appear.
- Feb. 9.
Hank is crippled again. It seems like someone is always picking on "our little Hank".
- Feb. 10.
Raise the flag; Pearl Salon has actually had her hair cut.
- Feb. 11.
Now Jasper has been added to the wounded list. He hurt his ankle in practice.
- Feb. 12.

March 1.

Lucile Lapp was chairman and Miss Jones was speaker at Forum. We admit that Page Robinson is living up to his reputation of liking to argue.

March 2.

Anne Weaver and Perry Thomas are given the leading roles in the Senior play.

March 3.

Miss Cromer's class had a debate on the subject, "Should Hank Kowalezyk wear shoes strings?" A very serious question.

March 4.

Mildred Lovin took P. McAvoy home from school. Don't you know that this isn't leap year? Gregg Witaker is back in school. Enjoy your vacation?

March 6.

Sectional Tournament. School dismissed at the end of the fourth period. We showed what we could do by whipping S. S.

March 8.

Another Forum meeting. It seems that most people go to Forum so that they can have a good time afterward.

March 9.

Peppiest pep meeting of the year. Why shouldn't we feel peppy after winning the Sectional?

March 10.

The "Three Pills in a Bottle" turned out to be quite the berries. Great merriment prevailed when the grades came out.

March 11.

Tryouts for the minor parts in the Senior play were held. Mose Rothberg makes a fine Irishman.

March 12.

March 19.

The supply of diamond rings at the "five and ten" ran short today and a new shipment was ordered.

March 23.

A longed-for pep meeting failed to materialize.

March 24.

A number of the girls in Miss Nelson's French class have given up all hope of graduating.

March 25.

The girls are receiving a great deal of attention from the boys lately. The Friendship Club are giving a dance soon.

APRIL

- April 1.
All Fools' Day. We leave it to the sophomores.
- April 2.
Those taking part in the Senior play enjoyed a restful vacation. The only thing that broke into the monotony was a few rehearsals.
- April 6.
Worn-out students trudging back to school after vacation, in order to get into their beloved school, were made to pass under a ladder. We trust there will be no bad luck.
- April 7.
Without doubt the Senior play was a success.
- April 8.
By the way some are hoping for rain one would think that they have natural curly hair, but—no, just new rain coats.
- April 9.
Some of our "grads" paid their respects to their alma mater today.
- April 10.
Day by day in every way some are getting brighter and brighter, but the seniors seem to be getting dumber and dumber.
- April 13.
Blue Monday.
- April 14.
Some of these people that are working on the Caldron had better get busy, or the Caldron will not be out on time.
- April 15.
If Perry and Florence agree upon something without arguing, there is something wrong with one of them.
- April 16.
Did you know that one can wander in the U. S., but one must go to Italy to Rome?
- April 17.
We learned how to operate the new telephones today. Probably too difficult for the freshmen to understand.
- April 18.
Some day, you freshmen will be seniors, too.
- April 19.
Important event—Leah Peters lost the keys to her car.
- April 21.
At last we have "the goods" on Miss Ingham. It is positively known that she carries lipstick.
- April 22.
The seniors are busy exchanging pictures.
- April 23.
What a temptation it is not to "skip" on a day as hot as this one!
- April 25.
We won both the baseball game and tennis match at Howe.
- April 26.

- May 6.
Day of great rejoicing: all the art work for the Caldron has finally been completed.
- May 7.
The seniors are required to spell correctly a hundred words before graduating. As a result some seniors are getting rather dubious as to whether they will very soon see a diploma.
- May 8.
A sack of bananas found its way through the library window and hit Dorothy Miley on her head. The person guilty of the crime has not been discovered.
- May 9.
Some of the senior boys "went big" with a couple of the actresses at the Palace. At least they thought they did.
- May 11.
The U. P. D.'s sold ice cream sandwiches like "hot-cakes".
- May 12.
Evelyn Richards was taken for a mother at the "Mother and Daughter Banquet". One of those slight mistakes.
- May 13.
A large mirror has been installed on the wall of the building on the corner of Calhoun and Lewis. It's almost impossible to get around the crowd.
- May 14.
A stray dog showed unusual intelligence by visiting Miss Kolb's sixth hour class.
- May 15.

"The Store That Saves You Money"

The Twenty-third Psalm as a '25 writes it:
Miss Kolb is my Civics teacher.

I shall not pass;

She maketh me to sit down so ashamed:
she letteth me feel so disgraced.

She annoyeth my soul; she leadeth me in the paths of past Civics for her own sake.

Yea, when I walk thru the halls of Central
I feel no freedom, for she is with me; her eye and her will, they do bother me.

She giveth me a hard test in the presence of my schoolmates; she filleth my head with dates, the poor thing runneth over.

Surely history and misery shall follow me all the days of my life; and I shall dwell in the Twelve A forever.

* * * * *

She—Do you ever have nightmares?

Her—No, I never get to sleep in time.

"Why don't you get rid of that no good

"I just keep him for sensational reasons—my wife hates him."

Central vs. Huntington

Once more playing their characteristic winning brand of basketball, the Tigers had little difficulty in securing a win over the Huntington team. The game was a comparatively listless one, Central using second string men for the greater part of the contest. Central early took the lead and held it throughout, the half ending 14-8 in her favor. For the second half Huntington showed greatly improved form, and repeatedly worked the ball down the floor only to miss the basket. The Lime City five began to threaten, but the Tigers stiffened their defense and soon began to pull away, the final count giving them a 26-18 victory in an uninteresting game.

Central vs. Kendallville

Kendallville formed the next opposition for the Tigers. The Noble County five had been in the habit of chalking up repeated wins over the Blue and White, for only twice in the last five years had Central come out ahead, and never had the Tigers defeated Kendallville on their own floor. But this time things were different, and, despite the fact that both Kowalczyk and Diehl were on the hospital list, Central bested K'ville on their home floor. The game was really a pretty one to see, both teams presenting impenetrable defenses, and scores made largely on beautiful long shots. At the close of the half K'ville had a scant two-point margin to her credit. However, coming from behind with a spirited dash, the Tigers established an eleven-point lead with which Kendallville could do no more than cut to a five-point margin of victory for the Tigers. So the Tiger squad returned home with a 33-28 victory, the first ever won by Central at Kendallville.

Central vs. Garrett

With the Tiger varsity tuning up for the South Side game, the Central team, made up greatly of reserves, experienced but little difficulty in conquering the Garrett team in a listless encounter. The Tiger cubs acquired and maintained a lead in the first half and led by four points at the end of the session. Garrett presented a little better attack in the second half and once or twice jumped into the lead. Each team began a fight in earnest to retain a winning margin, but neither seemed to have the necessary power to establish a comfortable lead. With but a one-point lead, Coach Mendenhall sent the varsity men into the fray, and they ran the margin of victory up to four points, the final score being Central 22, Garrett 18.

Central vs. South Side

With high hopes of making a clean sweep in the interschool series, the Tigers met the Green in the second battle royal, only to have their fond hopes cruelly crushed by an unexpected flash shown by the South Siders. Once more 3,500 fans packed around the South Side court to watch what was termed the best game of the season. Central entered the battle without Diehl, the star of the former victory, and with Jasper nursing a faulty ankle.

So the fight was on. South Side hopped into an early four-point lead, but it was short-lived, for the Tigers roused and went around the Southerners with six hard-earned markers. Central then held her lead till near the end of the half, when successive baskets by the South Side center brought the squads into a tie. A free throw was made by each side and the half ended in a 12-12 tie.

The Tigers started out fast in the second half and soon piled up a five-point lead, but the South Siders stepped on it, erased the Tigers' lead and themselves took the upper hand. Then the fans witnessed one of the greatest struggles ever experienced at that gym, the Tigers growling and fighting to make it two in a row over the "Fightin' Green"; but the green-clad five put up a veritable stonewall defense which the Tigers couldn't surmount. So the Green salted away the finest struggle in years, leaving the decisive battle of the year to be waged in the sectional tourney.

Central vs. Froebel of Gary

The next exploit of the Tigers was a journey into the northern part of the state, where they met teams reputed to be among the best in the state. The first of the two encounters was against Froebel of Gary. Due to some unknown cause, the Tigers were decidedly off form that game, and they missed an unreasonable number of what should have been easy shots. The playing of the Central men was especially poor in the first half, when Froebel had things all their own way and ran up a lopsided 26-9 score before the end of the first period. In the second half, though, the Tigers seemed to find themselves and they came back with a determined rush. They played the Gary five off their feet and outscored them 15-8. However, the first half had already caused defeat for the Tigers, and no brilliant playing could overcome the big lead the Froebel men had piled up. So the Tigers fought a plucky, creditable game in the second half, but the final score left them on the short end of a 34-24 count.

Central vs. Michigan City

Michigan City was the second team which Central met on her trip, and the Tigers were expecting even more opposition than experienced in the preceding game, for Michigan City had recently chalked up a victory over the Froebel five. However, the Tigers showed a surprising reversal of form and made the greater part of their shots count to score a comparatively easy win over the "Prison City" team. They simply ran away from their opponents in the first half, and by sinking many difficult chances they held the upper hand at the half by a one-sided 28-9 score. In the second period Central played far ahead of Michigan City and they were easy winners, leading at the finish 40-24. Every man on the Tiger squad had an uncanny eye for the basket, so that, although they had less shots than Michigan City, they made them count, and so made sure their victory. The Central men had clearly shown that when in form they could take down the best of 'em with apparent ease.

Central vs. Portland

In their third successive out-of-town game Central found unexpected opposition in Portland, rated as a fairly easy team. The Portland men simply played way above their regular game to defeat the Tigers, the Portland rooters themselves saying it was the best game of basketball they had played in four years. The game was hard fought from the start, with Central in a slight lead, 20-17, at the half. Also in the second half the teams waged battle, neck and neck, when in the closing seconds of the scheduled period the Portland back guard shot a long basket to tie the score at all. Morrel, playing only in the overtime period, scored three points for Central on a free throw and field goal, but two field goals by Portland men gave them enough points to grab a lucky victory. The winning field goal was scored by Abromson, and strange to say this field goal was the only one made by him in two full years of basketball. So the Tigers lost a game due to the unusually good work of a fairly poor team, but due credit must be given to the Portland squad for playing a real game to win over the Tigers.

Central vs. Wabash

Wabash opposed Central in her final schedule game of the season before the tournament. The Tigers successfully closed their regular season by rolling up half a hundred points against the Wabash team. Even at that the Tigers missed enough "set up" shots in the first half to make the score even greater. They started out and had collected 19 points before Wabash had started. Even after breaking the ice the Wabash men could do little and the half found them far to the rear in a 23-4 score. In the last half both teams showed much better playing form, but Wabash stood no chance of catching the fast-flying Tigers, for they were hitting the basket in fine style, finding it from all angles. Jasper broke loose under the net and sank seven field goals. The Blue kept shooting away until 50 points seemed near, and then the rooters demanded a 50-point score, so just as the final whistle sounded the Tigers attained the half-century mark. So, after handily winning, the Tigers were in fine shape to cop the sectional, their confidence high, their teamwork faultless, their basket eyes keen, and every man ready to accept nothing less than the sectional championship.

slipped into nothingness when compared to the South Side battle. Dope was against them as a green team, for they were up against a seasoned eleven with a good record behind them. It was only the indomitable Central fighting spirit that gave them so much as a look-in on the finish.

So in this situation the rival schools boomed their favorites and then sat tense as the opening whistle blew. At the very kick-off a green-clad man caught the ball and, eluding all Central tackles, placed the ball over Central's goal line for seven points. However, that only served to incense the Tigers, who fought just that much harder; but the green were not to be denied. The score stood twenty-six to nothing in South Side's favor at the end of the half. Yet through all that, the fact was clear to all that South Side did not get an inch of ground but what it stubbornly contested. The second half was a duplicate of the first half, and at the final gun the score stood forty-five to nothing with South Side in the lead. True, the Green and White held it over the Tigers in talent and ability, but the Tigers made up for that inequality by their plucky effort and never-dying fight.

DEAR OLD SCHOOL DAYS

Every Friday, in the little red schoolhouse, was given over to conundrums. The teacher asked, "What has a long nose, no teeth, is very ugly, and eats ants?" No one answered for quite a while; finally the usual Johnny held up his hand and said, "Teacher, I think it must be you." She was very insulted, of course, for she never ate ants in her life, and little Johnny was expelled. Now Johnny's old man had a drag with the school, and John was reinstated. The next Friday came along, and the teacher said, "What has a long nose, no teeth, is very ugly, and eats ants?" Johnny arose and started for the door. The teacher said, "What's wrong, Johnny? Are you sick?" He said, "Nope, I'm going home. I still think it's you."

DESPAIR

The youth whined as he felt the cold steel blade at his throat. He had never been in such a position as this before. Many things flashed through his mind. He recalled many youthful experiences and groaned as he thought of not being able to go through them again. His eyes were half closed, and he could only dimly see the one who had the blade at his throat. He began to feel the pain and gave a strong jerk, but was unable to free himself, as the two hands held his head back so that he could not move it. He began to feel his own blood trickle down his neck.

"Be still, Rat!" said his roommate. "Stand it like a man! You are no longer a child, and if you expect me to give you your first shave with this dull razor you will have to be still."

Furnas Ice Cream Company is one of the oldest companies making ice cream in existence. About 50 years ago R. W. Furnas started to manufacture ice cream in Indianapolis. This was about the first that ice cream was made in a commercial way and sold to dealers who resold it to the public.

Furnas Ice Cream Company was established in Ft. Wayne in 1909. At the very start the company's products met with hearty approval and business grew very rapidly, the ice cream being distributed by the druggists and confectioners of Ft. Wayne, and smaller towns about Ft. Wayne within a radius of 60 miles. In 1916 the company, then located at 615 Lafayette street, was compelled to seek larger quarters so they moved to the end of Clay St., near the Columbia St. bridge, and built one of the largest and most sanitary ice cream factories in the middle west. Since that time the firm has added all the best machinery and equipment that has been invented for manufacturing ice cream in a sanitary way. Their capacity is about 5000 gallons per day, and the work is mostly done by machinery of most modern invention.

This company's growth is due to three things: The application of honest dealings in all business affairs; the increase of population in Fort Wayne and vicinity, and above all, the high quality of ice cream maintained by this company has greatly increased the per capita consumption of ice cream.

Bottled Carbonated Beverages, properly produced, are purer than ordinary drinking water. Why? Because they purify themselves. Carbonic gas does destroy certain bacteria and also prevents bacterial growth. Also there is a certain food value in a bottle of Crystal Carbonated Soda Water evidenced by the statement that carbonated beverages are only 85 per cent water.

Carbonated beverages are mildly stimulating, simply because the bubbles of Carbon dioxide gas stimulate intestinal action and take up and dispel any stagnant secretions. If at any time you feel sluggish a bottle of Crystal carbonated beverages will give you pep; as a bracer, they are just like giving your digestive organs a "Daily Dozen" exercise.

The C. B. W. at 1812 Fairfield Ave., produces the purest of carbonated beverages. Pure water, cane sugar and only the best of flavoring extracts are used in Crystal Products. A visit to the plant would be appreciated.
